Local Briefs

Is there a more frustrating task for a DPW crew than to try to clear snow with cars parked all over the place? With the hopes of preventing this mayhem, City Council recently passed an emergency snow removal ordinance that would allow law enforcement officers to ticket and remove cars.

"I would hate to use this law," said Mayor William Oakley, "but for the welfare of this community, we will do just that. I'm urging all citizens and residents to please remove their vehicles off the roads during such emergencies so that our crews can get their job done."

"We need the cooperation of each and every citizen to accomplish this task," the mayor added.

Violators could receive stiff fines and jail sentences.

Local and area fire officials are also urging citizen cooperation in clearing snow from buried fire hydrants. "If there is a fire in a neighborhood and our men are delayed because of the inability to find and locate the hydrant, a life could be lost," a fire official said.

"It may be difficult for an elderly resident to clear snow from the hydrant. If they would contact us or even place some sort of marker at the site of the hydrant we would appreciate it."

Romulus schools received a $42,517 check from the state of Michigan this week, their part in state aid payments, according to State Rep. Thomas H. Brown.

Brown, a member of the House Education Committee, announced the distribution of state aid and pointed out that in the 37th district the Wayne-Westland Community Schools received more than $340,000 in aid, while Taylor collected $144,221.

There's an "Old-Fashioned Potato Pancake Supper" scheduled for 4:30 p.m., Sat. Feb. 13 at St. John's Lutheran Church, Northline and Telegraph and the public is cordially invited.

Sponsored by the ushers, the proceeds will be donated to various church programs. Donations are $4 for adults; $2.50 for teenagers between the ages of 14 and 17; $1.25 for children 3 to 13, and for further information contact Kenneth Sell, 941-0443.

Enough is enough

With a smile on his face, Belleville resident Tony Ostrowski digs that omnipresent white stuff from his path. Snow has plagued southeastern Michigan this year as 4 to 8 inches more of it was predicted to fall yesterday and today to add to the already 20 inch base that has accumulated during the past three weeks. It's difficult to believe that Spring is almost a month away. Isn't it?

V-B schools ask mill renewal

Although the resolution for the request has not been formulated, Van Buren Community School District voters likely will be asked to renew a 14.35 school tax levy on April 5.

The request for the renewal came up at Monday night's school board meeting and, according to Dr. Elvin Peets, superintendent of schools, the renewal would mean the difference between life or death for the school district.

The schools would lose approximately 35 percent of their budget if the voters decided not to renew the levy. "That would place us in an Alpena or Taylor kind of situation," Dr. Peets said.

Taylor and Alpena were on the verge of closing last year because of voters refusal to finance their school systems. It was only after a last-ditch attempt that the residents of those communities came through at the polls.

"I am confident that the community would want to maintain at least the present level of education in their school system," Dr. Peets said. "We are now at the minimum 5-hour per day level with absolutely no frills. There can be no other cuts."

"And I hope the Press realizes and makes it clear to those who will be voting that this is NOT a tax increase but a tax renewal. Traditionally tax renewals have passed. In fact, the Wayne-Westland schools last year OK'd a 34 mill tax renewal, as I recall."

The school district presently levies 34½ mills (one mill equals $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property value). If the renewal is defeated, the school district would lose approximately $5 million.

The school board will meet at 7 p.m., Mon., Feb. 16 to work on the wording for the resolution as it will appear on the ballot.

Recommendation stirs furor

2 schools to close?

Supt. William Bedell's recommendation to close Beverly and Mt. Pleasant Elementary Schools next fall as a means of saving the Romulus School District some $240,000 annually in operating expenses met with heated opposition Monday night.

The Romulus Board of Education, which is considering six different plans for school consolidation submitted by a citizens' committee, will hold meetings throughout the community to receive citizen input on the issue.

Public sessions are scheduled at Cory School at 7 p.m. Feb. 10; Beverly School, 7:30 p.m. Feb. 17; Haiti School, 7:30 p.m. Feb. 24, and the regular school board meeting at Barth School, 7:30 p.m. Feb. 22.

"It's in the best interests of the children in this community to close Beverly and Mt. Pleasant," Dr. Bedell told the board. "Beverly is the smallest school in the northern part of the city and the children would fit in at Wick and Cory."

"Mt. Pleasant would be the best school to shut in the southern end because Barth is bigger and has more facilities."

According to the superintendent, approximately 1400 students would be affected if his recommendation is approved. Bedell said the district will "barely survive" financially this year and is operating two more schools than necessary at present.

"We know what's in the best interests of our children," declared Mrs. Dorothy Phoenix, who engaged in a heated debate with Dr. Bedell at the board meeting. "This is Black History Month and you will go down in history as being against black children if you do this (close Beverly)."

"It is a blatant racist decision to scatter our children," she charged the school board.

"On the contrary," replied Dr. Bedell, "Beverly was built for racial segregation purposes. These children will not be scattered but would attend the two north side schools which would remain."

Tom Coleman and Mrs. Mary Edwards, residents in the Beverly School area, also urged the board to reject the superintendent's recommendation. Coleman told the school officials of his unpleasant experiences while attending a school away from his neighborhood some 20 years ago.

School Board President Michael Woods reminded the audience that a decision regarding the proposed school closings has not been reached. No date was given for the announcement of the board's ruling on the matter.

Cantrell makes move

'Accounts payable' guidelines offered

Hoping to end a two-month hassle over "Accounts Payable" between his department and the mayor's office, Romulus City Clerk Raymond J. Cantrell today issued some guidelines that could resolve the problem.

Cantrell contends that the city clerk is mandated under the City Charter to execute the function of the "accounts payable," while Mayor William Oakley has argued that that authority is invested in his powers under the charter.

An informal decision by the Attorney General's Office didn't solve the probwarrant preparation after the audit is completed. (Section 9.9, paragraph C of the Romulus City Charter)

- All invoices are to be approved by the Department Head or Elected Official incurring the expenditure. (Section 9.9, paragraph C of the Romulus City Charter)

- The Clerk's Office will have access to Accounts Payable files to facilitate the auditing process.

- All audited documents are to be stamped and initialed by the Clerk's Office. This procedure is to assure or to authenticate that the audit function has been completed by the Clerk's Office.

"As you are well aware, there exists a serious problem as to who is to perform the Accounts Payable function. After many attempts to resolve this issue, the Mayor's Office refuses to negotiate in good faith," Cantrell stated.

"I, therefore, have come to the conclusion that our vendors and employees must not suffer because of the difference in interpretation of the City Charter requirements between the two administrative offices. The City Clerk will, under protest, sign the past warrants to enable the Treasurer to issue payments for those who have serviced the City in one way or another."

Cantrell added that in no way should his communication be construed that the City Clerk and the Mayor have resolved this issue. He felt, however, that many concessions have been made by the Clerk's Office contrary to policy held by the Clerk's Office for the past eleven years.

"I have made this decision so as not to embarrass our community further and, most importantly, to restore our integrity with our suppliers," he wrote.

"The Clerk's Office," Cantrell continued, "will continue to serve the Romulus Residents and elected officials to the best of its ability. In order to accomplish goals in government as well as in the private sector, there must be cooperation and harmony or all will fail."

RAY CANTRELL

lem. The Attorney General believes that the function is a procedural one and should be resolved by the municipality.

In his letter to Mayor Oakley and mailed to Treasurer Beverly McAnally and the City Council, Cantrell stated that the "Accounts Payable" audit guidelines would follow the 4-step procedure which included:

- Purchase orders, invoices, receiver copies or authorization letters are to be received in the Clerk's Office on a daily basis for the purpose of an internal audit. These documents will be delivered to the Finance Department for final stage of

Fear Another 'Love Canal'

Sumpter Township officials wage war against toxic wastes

Like an unwanted child it exists and is protected because it is a ward of the state.

Local communities watch as it devours poisonous substances and coughs out noxious odors. And, as if the odors aren't enough, the by-products of its digestion could lead to countless ailments and illnesses for humans.

This is the kind of picture one sees when he or she discusses landfills.

And, after the revelations of "Love Canal," a community in New York that suffered the consequences of uncontrolled landfills and toxic wastes, more people have become aware of the dangers landfills pose to humans and the environment.

In Sumpter, where the township board had adopted a moratorium on landfills and is fighting a court battle with City Sand & Landfill over their proposal to dump toxic wastes in the township, officials and residents know how frustrating these wars can be.

City Sand & Landfill, in August of 1981, sought a permit to run a general commercial landfill for toxic wastes under the state's 1979 Hazardous Waste Management Act. If the state gives the owners approval, the local authorities can do little about it because state law super-sedes local ordinances.

"We are the only township board to go on record, in my opinion, to opposing these kinds of landfills," said James Reeves, Sumpter Township supervisor. "Obviously we're not doing this for publicity. We have deep concerns for the welfare of our people. We don't know what this waste will do to our bodies and to our children—and we will fight it."

Reeves said that the odors emanating from the landfill are unbearable in the winter. "Do you know what it's like in the summer? I don't want to describe it. We have residents in the immediate vicinity of that landfill," Reeves said.

City Sand & Landfill, which occupies approximately 240 acres in the Elwell Rd. and Willow Rd. area presently handles non-hazardous wastes. Sumpter Township residents have had problems with the operation in the past, the runoff from the landfill being one of the major concerns.

Most of the waste dumped in the landfill is transported via trucks from Detroit, which is another bone of contention. Residents feel Detroit should keep "their own waste."

That sentiment is also echoed by Reeves, who pointed out that "there is certainly enough land in Detroit so that city officials can provide for their own landfills.

"And if that's not the solution, why not recycle this waste or use incinerators to get rid of it?" Reeves continued. "Dumping it in the earth and letting that stuff seep into our water streams is appalling."

"I don't want Sumpter or any of our communities to become another 'Love Canal,'" Reeves stressed.

He obviously has the support of the board, which is willing "to take the fight to the Supreme Court, if necessary to win its case."

Youth in One Accord

Romulus to host spiritual team from Houghton College

Now serving in its thirty-first year, the Youth in One Accord Revival Team from Houghton College presents the challenge to reality in service at the Romulus Wesleyan Church, February 25-28. This challenge will be presented through a new sound in conservative, contemporary music with a message, personal testimony to the relevance of Jesus Christ today, and a message from the Bible. All are welcome.

Dr. George "Coach" Wells, "He never changes," brings the message in layman's language. He has served as Director of Youth in One Accord since its founding in 1951. Coach earned his doctorate at the State University of New York at Buffalo. He is Head of the Physical Education Department at Houghton College where he also coaches the women's intercollegiate field hockey team — thus the name "Coach."

Beth Sperry, soprano, Coleen Cotton, second soprano, and Ella Chamberlain, alto, make up a joyful trip. They are joined by Jon Horton and David Hardy and Coach in presenting a variety of arrangements of songs that have a message. Rounding out the Team with vibrant accompaniment is Kristen Kipp.

The spiritual and musical harmony of the Team is apparent to all. "You will know they are Christians because they love one another!" Do not miss this group's presentation in a different but relevant ministry.

God has honored the work of Youth in One Accord for nearly thirty years with thousands of decisions for Christ. The Team has ministered in five different countries, to over thirty-eight different denominational groups, and to several non-denominational groups. In the last year the ministry included meetings in the Netherlands Antilles, Puerto Rico, Canada and the Northeastern United States. To accomplish this, they have relied on the Lord by Faith to provide the resources to pay personnel and expenses incurred in traveling 500,000 miles.

'Winter Wildlife'

"Winter Wildlife Survival," a family program, will be held at the Nature Center of Kensington Metropark near Milford/Brighton on Sunday, Jan. 31, at 2 p.m.

Naturalist Bob Hotelling will lead a 1½-hour walk in search of local wildlife and will explain the winter difficulties for wildlife (who must search for food, keep warm and escape predators). Persons should dress warmly and meet at the Nature Center.

This program is free, however, advance registration is required.

For information or registration, contact the Nature Center at Kensington Metropark at 685-1561 (Milford). A vehicle entry permit is required.

Local officials tour W-W tech complex

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor

The Wayne-Westland Community Schools is "extremely proud" of its new vocational technical center, so much so that it served as the site of the annual Wayne County Vocational Administrators' Legislative Brunch this week.

Hosted by members of the Wayne County Vocational Administrators, the brunch each year brings together school administrators and their local legislators for an exchange of current information on vocational education, as well as allowing local vocational administrators to talk to the lawmakers about their concerns.

In welcoming the legislators, their representatives and officials from other

Wayne County School districts, Wayne-Westland School Supt. Dr. Timothy Dyer said the opportunity of hosting the brunch was a way for the district of "saying thank you for all the support throughout the years" for the facility.

According to Dyer, the votech center, which offers training in 17 vocational fields ranging from photography and cinematography to the culinary arts to auto mechanics and auto body repair, had been in the works in one shape or another since 1973, but did not actually become a reality until the district landed more than $8 million in a Local Public Works grant in 1977. Some $1.7 million from the state and a millage approved by the voters in 1976 also helped to fund the complex $15 million, which houses the William D. Ford Vocational Technical Center.

The guests included State Reps. Lucille McCoullough, Royce Smith, Jack Kirksey and Thomas Anderson, State Sen. James DeSana and Robert Geake and David Callanan representing Senate Majority Leader William Faust, State Board of Education member Barbara DuMouchelle and officials from the Van Buren, Inkster, Westwood, Allen Park and Lincoln Park school districts.

Tours of the center provided the guests with a closer look at what is being done behind the many doors of the structure, with instructors pausing to explain what the students were being taught and questions and answers

Q: I will be 65 this month, and if I continue to work, will I have to wait until I retire to get Medicare?

A: You do not have to retire to apply for Medicare. A 1980 change in the law allows separate applications for monthly benefits and hospital insurance.

Q: My mother recently underwent surgery. The doctor says she no longer needs skilled medical care, so he's discharging her from the hospital next week. I think she should stay because she still needs help in getting in and out of bed and with walking. Wouldn't Medicare pay for this kind of care?

A: Care which is primarily for the purpose of meeting personal needs and could be provided by persons without professional skills or training — such as help in walking and getting in and out of bed — is considered custodial care. Medicare cannot cover custodial care, even if the patient is in hospital or skilled nursing facility or is receiving care from a home health agency.

Q: I draw SSI and charge my groceries at the neighborhood store. For the past 2 months, my brother has gone down and paid my grocery bill, which averages $50 a month. When I went in to the Social Security office for my yearly reevaluation for SSI payments, I was told that his kindness caused me to be overpaid. I don't understand why I should be penalized for this.

A: Your brother is providing you with food by paying your grocery bill each month. The law requires that you be charged in-kind support and maintenance when you are supplied with a necessity — such as food — by a third party.

If you have questions about Social Security, contact Field Representative Frances M. Heimes-Savickis at the Social Security Administration, 27407 Michigan Avenue, Inkster, Michigan 48141.

County says safeguards would prevent nuclear plant disaster

Wayne and Monroe County residents living near the Enrico Fermi II Nuclear plant "are in good hands" in case of a malfunction, Monty Phillips of the National Nuclear Regulatory Commission, told officials Wednesday during a critique of emergency procedures taken following a simulated disaster at the power plant February 2nd.

Success of the disaster drill, considered one of the best ever conducted since the Three-Mile Island Nuclear plant malfunction fiasco in 1979, is expected to assure the Detroit Edison Company officials that they will receive their license next week—a requirement before the plant can be operated.

The critique, conducted at the Monroe City-County Building by members of the NRS, FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency), Detroit Edison, and local and county officials last Wednesday completed some six months of planning and simulated problems associated with nuclear power plant operations.

Wayne County Commissioner William Sullivan, responsible for planning and coordinating emergency reaction procedures within Federal and State guidelines among local communities, was enthusiastic in his praise of police, fire, health, social services, and emergency personnel taking part in the exercises.

"These people displayed exceptional expertise in carrying out their duties," he said, "and without their cooperation the highly successful February disaster drill could not have been effected."

Sullivan especially noted the response of the communities of Flat Rock, Gibraltar, Brownstown Township, Rockwood, Trenton, and Wayne County employees.

The Commissioner, who acted as county liaison with the State On-Scene Emergency Operating Center (EOC) at Flat Rock city hall, during the emergency drill personally thanked Police Chief Ray Hoffman, Flat Rock; Dan Mercure, Rockwood Fire Department Captain; Jan Meyer, E.P.C. Deputy, Gibraltar;

Charles Galdes, Brownstown Township Liaison; Donald Herrman, Fire Operations Officer from Flat Rock; and Robert Mahoney, Public Works Operations Officer from Romulus.

Hoffman is Chairman of the Downriver Mutual Aid (police) and Herrman is Chairman of the Downriver Mutual Aid (fire). More than 42 Wayne County officials and employees and 500 Monroe County, Edison, State and Federal personnel took part in the local portion of the drill.

Basically, the emergency plan establishes four stages of action: Unusual Event, On-Site Emergency, Alert and General Emergency. The Governor, when the problem escalates, can call for a state of disaster.

When an Alert is sounded, an Emergency Operating Facility (EOF) located at the plant and two EOC's (Emergency Operating Centers), one each in Wayne and Monroe Counties to monitor emergency procedures, are activated. At the same time, the Joint Public Information center at Monroe County Community College is made operational and begins to process pertinent information for dispersal to news media and the Emergency Broadcasting Service.

State facilities are also activated. NRC scientists within the plant monitor activities as a further safeguard. It is their reports that find their way to EOC and J-PIC via telephone, radio and teletype communications.

The ultimate purpose is to keep the world apprised of the emergency and procedures being carried out to protect the public. Until these procedures are proven to be efficient and accurate during simulated scenarios, FEMA won't approve the facility for its license to operate and the NRC won't let the plant "fuel up."

If Detroit Edison wins its license next week, plant officials expect to add nuclear fuel by November of 1982 and start producing electricity sometime in 1983.

tional education courses offered by the Western Wayne Area Vocational Consortium which is hosting "Open Houses" during national Voc. Ed. Week.

The Western Wayne Area Vocational Consortium wants you to pay them a visit.

And for an excellent reason. The invitation, extended to parents and the community, is in conjunction with National Vocational Education Week which got underway Monday and will end Sat., Feb. 13.

This year's theme is: "Vocational Education Keeps America Working."

To illustrate that fact, doors of classrooms will be opened to the public for the purpose of demonstrating the work skills vocational education students learn.

Tours of the facilities in Belleville and Romulus may be arranged from Thurs., Feb. 11 from 8:30 until 10:30 a.m. or 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

"Vocational Educational Week has always been an opportunity for students and teachers to show off their programs," said Al Sheffield, director of the consortium. This year we hope residents take a look at the programs going on in both school districts.

Following is a list of the facilities and Vocational Education programs available at each site:

Romulus Senior High, 9650 S. Wayne Road: Automotive mechanics, building trades, child care, computer programming, cosmetology, drafting occupations, health occupations, nurses aide, office education, photography, recreation vehicle repair, store management, stenographic training and welding.

At Belleville High School, 501 W. Columbia: Distributive Education retailing and marketing; machine trades technology, office education, stenographic and clerical studies.

At Belleville Vocational Education Center, 414 Sumpter Road, Belleville: Automotive body repair, automotive mechanics, building trades and welding.

For more information, please contact Sheffield at 941-2170 extension 32.

The many heroes of the storm

Last week's snow storm had many unsung heroes but Romulus School Board Trustee, Dan Bales, is not overlooking school employees who stayed at their posts to get children home safely despite a raging blizzard.

Bales had praise for operations and maintenance people who worked up to 18 hours straight to clear school property for classes.

A resolution by Bales was prepared to recognize what he termed as "Outstanding Effort," on the part of the school employees who continued on the job, even after the central board office closed, in order to be sure that all buses returned safely on Wednesday when school was dismissed at 11 a.m.

"Then they came in at 7 a.m. on Thursday and worked through until 2 a.m. so that school could resume on Friday morning," Bales explained.

"I think it was pretty much a matter of pride," he continued. "Most of our employees live in the community and they, along with the City DPW, took a lot of pride in being among the few in Western Wayne County who were able to get things dug out and operating in short order."

Black History Month'

Romulus High hosts Great Kings of Africa

Budweiser's Great Kings of Africa, a widely acclaimed collection of portraits of African leaders painted by some of America's best known contemporary artists, will be on display Feb. 11-12 in conjunction with "Black History Month."

The series will be on display at the Romulus Senior High School, 9650 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. each day. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

Since launching the Great Kings series in 1976 with four portraits, the collection has been expanded three times and now numbers 14 paintings of famous African leaders. Since 1976, an estimated 10 million people have viewed Budweiser's Great Kings of Africa collection during exhibitions at museums, schools, libraries, conventions and cultural festivals.

Two new paintings, unveiled in June at an exhibition in Phoenix, are of African kings who were famous for their diplomatic abilities: Shamba Bolongongo (1600-1620), monarch of the Congo, by New York artist Roy LaGrone; and Khama (1838-1923), king of Bechuana-land, now Botswana, by Detroit illustrator Carl Owens.

Shame Bolongongo was known for his desire to preserve peace in his country, promoting arts and crafts in place of warfare. Khama kept peace in his country by striking alliances with the warring British, Dutch Boers and African Zulu tribe, according to historian Dr. John Henrik Clarke of Hunter College, a research consultant to the series.

"We are delighted about the completion of these magnificent portraits of two of Africa's greatest leaders," said series coordinator Henry H. Brown, vice president of market development for Anheuser-Busch, Inc. "The success of the Budweiser Great Kings series has surpassed our highest expectations."

Brown explained the series has become so popular that the company has split the Budweiser exhibit into two parts for showings around the country.

In addition to the two new portraits, the Romulus exhibition will also include six other paintings from the Great Kings series including: Hannibal—Ruler of Carthage (247-183 B.C.); Mansa Kankan Musa—King of Mali (1312-1337); Askia Muhammed Toure—King of Songhay (1493-1529); and Menelek II—King of Kings of Abyssinia (1844-1913); Osei-Tutu—King of Asante (1680-1717); and Moshoheshoe—King of Basutoland (1815-1868).

and Jennifer Galli - Clarinet Quartet; Patrick Rhodes - Snare Drum Solo; Mark Calderone and Sam Farmer - Cornet Duet; Scott Snipes - Piano Solo; Kim Burgess and Cheryl Hernandez - Cornet Duet; Missy Ward, Pam Witherow, Lorraine Zarawski and Nicole O'Nel - Clarinet Quartet; Angela Gaffka and Paul Wilson - Cornet Duet; Steve Mazzone, Lori Boger and Rachelle Giss - Saxophone Trio; Kevin Allen and Tom Greenan - Saxophone Duet; Matthew Delonge and Kevin Allen - Saxophone Duet; Louis Harris and Mike Hawkins - Clarinet Duet; Mickey McDonald, Kim Winer and Jennifer Harrieff - Flute Trio; Ken Meintkiewicz and Jennifer Harrieff - Flute Duet;

Kruse and Principal Nick Tottis were proud of the achievements of the students. "The students should also be complimented in regard to the amount of extra practice time it takes to prepare for the Solo and Ensemble Festival," added Director Kruse who also wished to thank the parents of these students for transporting them over to Livonia despite the inclement weather.

Band strikes up winning note in district contests

"I'm proud of them... very proud of them." That's how band director Richard Kruse summed up his feelings last week when 46 Romulus Junior high band students came away with high grades at the District XII Solo and Ensemble Festival held at Livonia Franklin High School.

Of the 46 participants, 36 of the students won a total of 45 medals in 19 events.

"They were up against some of the finest and toughest competition in the area and they performed admirably," Kruse noted. "Only three bands received a one or highest rating and 16 of them received a second division rating and our kids were among the tops."

First Division winners were: Patrick Stark - Tuba Solo; Kim Winer and Mickey McDonald, Flute Duet; and Eric Talley and Robert Kobylas - Baritone Duet.

Second Division winners included: Patty LeCrois, Debbie Barr and Mary Silvey - Clarinet Trio; Nicole O'Nel, Missy Ward and Pam Witherow - Clarinet Trio; Shannon Murray, Tammey Kerekés, Angela Katcher

'Shadows over Wayne County'

Formation of a 'shadow' government to provide an overview of Wayne County's transition to a Chartered County structure with an Executive Officer responsible for its operation, was announced by Commissioners R. William Joyner (D-Plymouth) and William Runco (R-Dearborn Heights) during a press conference last week. A few of the representatives of some 20 out-county cities, townships, and civic groups attending the meeting

'Shadows Officials form 'watchdog coalition'

Area community officials and civic leaders have announced the formation of a "shadow" government to protect the interests of their citizens as Wayne County shifts into its role as a Chartered government.

Wayne County Commissioner R. William Joyner (D-Plymouth) and a number of representatives from nearly 20 city, township and civic groups told members of the media last week that since their communities are currently providing the lion's share of county property taxes they wanted to make certain their taxpayers received a like share of the services.

"While I applaud Wayne County Board of Commissioners' Chairman A. Turner's plans to ease the problems of transition and his State of the County address asking that we all join together to work on the concerns that have an impact on Wayne County, those of us living in the other 42 cities and townships outside of Detroit are beginning to believe that we are being overlooked."

"We must drive from 25-35 miles to obtain county services," Joyner noted, the county road commission has cut-back road repairs, drains haven't been cleaned for 35 years, we are being asked to pay for our own road signs, our portion of revenue-sharing funds have not kept pace with our contributions, and plans to conduct at least four county board meetings in out-county communities have never come to fruition although approved by its members two years ago.

"Because of these disparities," Joyner continued, "we are proposing a 15 point platform to ease transition, to protect the rights of county employees now facing the age-old spoils system, to explore the more efficient use of county property at Eloise and to obtain services and representation rightfully due out-county residents."

Attending the meeting with Joyner were Karl Gansler, City of Plymouth Commissioner; Carol Bodenmiller, Canton Township Trustee; James Reeves, Sumpter Township Supervisor; Floyd Bevins, Sumpter Township the philosophy behind the class room programming.

Following a brunch, prepared and served by members of the center's culinary arts class, under the direction of Jon Gray and Pat Bunnell, the visitors were given an overview of the future of vocational education by Dr. Rae Levis, associate superintendent of the Intermediate School District and a member of the National Advisory Council on Vocational Education.

According to Dr. Levis, the council, as well as vocational education funding, is facing some troubling times under the new federalism proposed by President Ronald Reagan.

The President has requested dissolution of federal support of education other than compensatory and special education, shifting the burden of funding to the state and local agencies.

Dr. Levis said such a dissolution in funding will mean "a serious and dramatic reduction in the dollars coming in for vocational education."

Although the funding of vocational education has been re-authorized for four years, Dr. Levis said that legislation providing that funding has yet to be approved, and the reconciliation legislation sought by Reagan would shift the federal aid to the state and local governments.

"I don't know where we're going in vocational education," she added. "It's a problem of having been reauthorized during reconciliation."

"We must educate for the living and for making a living," she added.

Trustee; Don Rushock, President of the Wayne-Westland School Board; Jan Keller, City of Plymouth homeowner and government activist; and Liz McCarville, Northville Township citizen group leader. Joyner said officials from many other Western Wayne County communities have indicated their support, but were unable to attend the conference.

"Each of us wants this year to be a year dedicated to making county government work with new and innovative ideas," Joyner added. "To that end we offer these recommendations:

"That a transition team be in place no later than March 1 headed by a person considered to be the most knowledgeable of the new County Charter, William O'Brien; that all candidates for the County Executive post be encouraged to tour the county offices for their own enlightenment; that a special jail task force be appointed to ensure the most efficient use of the new county jail upon its completion next year; that county property at Eloise be better utilized; that the County Road Commission fulfill its legal obligation to provide services to townships and not attempt to force taxpayers to pay, separately, for road grading, signs, chloriding, snow removal and other projects paid through gas and weight taxes; and that out-county communities be given fair representation by the Board of Commissioners: four meetings per year to be conducted in out-county areas were sanctioned by the Board two years ago, none have been held; additionally both the chairman and vice chairman of the Board have, for the past three years, been residents of Detroit."

Ford Seeking 'Outstanding Youth'

Congressman William D. Ford (D-Taylor) today announced his sixth annual Congressional Medal of Merit Awards program for Outstanding Youth in the Congressional District.

Originally conducted in 1976 as part of the Bicentennial celebration, the awards program was so well received that the citizens committee (consisting of members from each of the 21 communities in the 15th district) recommended that it be continued as an annual event.

"I believe this is an excellent way to honor some of the truly outstanding young people whose activities and accomplishments too often have gone unnoticed and unrewarded," Congressman Ford said.

Two awards will be available in each of the 21 communities in the Congressman's District. One will be for boys and girls aged 14 through 18, who are still in high school, and the other for high school graduates aged 18 through 22. The medals will be personally presented by Congressman Ford in May.

Nomination forms are available from Congressman Ford's District Office in the Wayne Post Office Bldg., Wayne, Michigan, 48184 (722-1411). They can also be picked up from most City or Township Clerks' offices in the 15th Congressional District. The deadline for nominations is March 18, 1982.

The committee has decided to keep the same ground rules for the judging criteria which it has followed in past years, Congressman Ford explained. To qualify for consideration, the accomplishments of these young people should be outstanding and meaningful, and represent broad range of interests and activities. Accomplishments for which a nominee has received financial payment do not qualify.

Frank Weiss of Gibraltar will chair the Citizens Committee, and will also represent the City of Gibraltar. Others serving on the committee are:

Adolph Jedryzka - Ash Twp. & Carleton; Stella Adams - Belleville; Nick Galovich - Brownstown Twp.; Doug Ritter - Canton Twp.; William Dohan - Dearborn Hts.; Judy Artley - Flat Rock; Elva Ryall - Garden City; Helen Kowalski - Huron Twp. and Ernest Lyons - Inkster.

Al Prause - Romulus; Michael Hendin - Southgate; Girtha Folks - Sumpter Twp.; Wm. Greenslaid - Taylor; Imogene Pence - Van Buren Twp.; Robert Beeny - Wayne; Anita Cobb - Westland and Gene Palmer - Woodhaven.

Former higher tar smokers affirm MERIT choice for taste, ease of switch, and long-term satisfaction.

The research results are overwhelming.

New National Smoker Study provides solid evidence that 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT offers a satisfying alternative to higher tar cigarettes.

MERIT Taste Sparks Switch.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar are glad they did. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Clear Choice In New Tests.

In addition, extensive unmarked-pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared against higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Romulus sets softball talks

The first organizational meeting of the adult softball league will be held at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 16 in the Romulus Recreation Building, 36515 Bibbins St. Last year's team managers and players, as well as new team managers, are invited to attend.

Time to purchase dog licenses

There's good news and there's bad news about dog licenses, reports Romulus City Treasurer, Beverly McAnally.

The good news is that licenses will not cost any more this year than last; the bad news is that they are due by March 1.

According to ordinance, all dogs over 6 months of age in the City of Romulus must be inoculated and licensing clinic held on two Saturdays in February.

On February 20 and 27, between 1:30 and 5 p.m., a veterinarian will be on hand at the old firehall located at Wayne and Goodard.

Shots will include a three year rabies vaccination as well as other inoculations and boosters for those wishing to protect their pets against distemper and Parvo disease.

Costs for the inoculations will not be increased over that which has been charged for the past three years.

"This is a service that is provided to the public," said McAnally. "The city does not benefit from the clinic except that we have a safer community with dogs protected with the inoculations."

An additional benefit is that properly tagged dogs who become lost can be traced through the license number so that owners and pets can be reunited.

"It also helps animal owners to comply with the law and avoid fines," she concluded.

Friend of Court issues support payment coupons

Processing child support payments to the Wayne County Friend of the Court will be streamlined during 1982, according to Judge Richard D. Dunn, Chief Judge of the Third Judicial Circuit Court, and Gerhard F. Ritsema, Wayne County Friend of the Court, who have announced a new service.

"Support Payment Coupon Books" will be mailed to the payor on all active Friend of the Court child support accounts during the first six months of 1982.

Each coupon book contains 26 weekly "coupons" that are pre-coded with the case number and the amount due. Use of the coupon will permit faster processing of the payment and consequently provide better service to families receiving payments.

"Not only is processing time improved, but use of the coupons will assure that payments are credited to the proper account and should eliminate delays caused when account numbers are inaccurate or illegible," Ritsema said.

"The coupons also will provide the payor with a convenient record of payments made."

This is one of many new changes in the operation of the Friend of the Court. Other improvements in the Friend of the Court services include the establishment of a Client Communications Center at 224-5292 for the purpose of providing accurate case information over the phone with minimum delay, and the implementation of an appointment system (call 224-5320), which has significantly reduced the amount of time a person must spend at the Friend of the Court to obtain service.

Flood plan is proposed

Because of the unusually heavy snowfall this year which may cause flooding when a thaw occurs, the Wayne County Board of Commissioners is developing a Flood Alert Office to monitor weather conditions and issue warnings when and if disaster is pending.

lessen property damage and inconvenience for residents throughout the county.

"We have weather-watch systems that alert us to storms that are coming; this would be a flood-watch system to enable us to protect ourselves from water damage," Manning explained. He said the Flood Alert Office would monitor conditions and provide bulletins to newspapers and broadcast media, and publish maps and other data for forecasting disaster situations.

"Hopefully, this will enable people to take precautions and evacuate themselves and their belongings if necessary," said Manning. He said the Flood Alert Office would also plan for use of public facilities available to house those who may be displaced by floods.

Predicting from conditions in past years, Manning said a potentially dangerous thaw could occur as early as before the end of February.

Consumers Power Company is running one of the largest "yard sales" in the state.

You won't find old clothing, toys, lawn mowers or kitchen gadgets at this sale, but you could find bucket trucks and bulldozers, storage tanks, steno chairs, tools and toggle bolts.

The money earned — about $4 million last year alone — is put right back into utility operations, making this industrial-sized "yard sale" a bargain for both the company and its customers, according to the Jackson-based utility.

Our Opinions

Trade agreements hurt auto workers

It has become a popular pastime in some quarters to castigate the American auto worker for creating massive problems in the domestic automobile industry.

Higher wages and fringe benefits for American workers in comparison to their Japanese counterparts has resulted in recession-level unemployment, plant closings and an upsurge in foreign car sales, industry spokesmen tell us. And to a point their evaluation is valid — only to a point, however.

For to point the finger at the auto worker as the reason for high prices and lack of quality workmanship circumvents the effects of high interest rates and a grossly unbalanced trade agreement that today favors the Japanese.

Only recently the Administration has suggested that the time may be nearing for legislation which allows retaliation against Japan and other countries that do not accept U.S. goods as readily as this country accepts their products. Current Japanese trade barriers, such as costly inspections of each car shipped to Japan has led to a $10 billion U.S. deficit in trade with the Japanese and has angered a growing number of U.S. officials in the process.

Could it be that "free enterprise" works best when accompanied by "fair enterprise"?

Mike Russell, an aide to Sen. Donald Riegle, reported last week that the senator favors implementation of a quota system on Japanese automobiles for the next three years to allow domestic manufacturers time to complete a plant and product modernization program. He suggests limiting the Japanese to a 14 percent share of the market during this period as a short-term solution to what has become a crisis, especially in Michigan.

If the thought of government intervention in this matter seems abhorrent to the "free enterprise" defenders, consider this: Japan ranks as one of the world's most isolationist countries with regards to permitting foreign products or services into its nation. So regulatory in fact that American cigarette advertisers are allowed to communicate their messages to the Japanese public using only the English language, Russell points out.

Furthermore, government subsidization of the Japanese auto industry comes in the form of health care benefits and active support of marketing and planning, certainly not standard operating procedure here.

On Capitol Hill the realization that the lack of a reciprocal trade agreement with the Japanese has played a role in our automotive slump seems to have taken hold. As Russell reports, officials in Washington are "starting to talk tough" on the trade deficit issue.

And "act tough" is what must follow. Auto worker concessions will not be themselves solve the problem unless trade irregularities and high interest rates also are addressed.

One proposal under consideration would permit an importing nation, such as the U.S., to subject foreign goods to the same duties and restrictions imposed on its goods by the exporting nation. Only then could "fair enterprise" be achieved in the foreign and domestic auto industries.

Those who feel that such "fair enterprise" legislation should be enacted are encouraged to make their feelings known to Sen. John Danforth (R-Missouri), the chairman of the International Trade Subcommittee of the Senate Finance Committee. He can be reached at 1207 Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington D.C. 20510.

Trade reciprocity demands the immediate attention of our elected leaders. Without it, even on a temporary basis, domestic auto worker concessions will merely solve one part of a very complex puzzle.

Elder cottages...door to happiness for the elderly?

After her husband died a year ago, Mrs. Lena Musser, 81, of Lancaster County, Pa., lived alone in their large old house. She and her daughter's family, who live about a mile away, worked hard to tend the garden, spray the trees, do repairs and keep the place clean. But it was getting to be too much.

Mrs. Musser, a bustling Mennonite and expert quilter, was not interested in nursing home life. The county, with a population of 44,000 older people, has a high-rise residence for them—and a waiting list of more than six years.

What to do? Today Mrs. Musser lives in a tidy gray, two-bedroom cottage with black shutters, erected in the yard of her daughter's white stone house in the rural, residential district of Honeybrook.

Such "grossdawdy," or grandfather houses, are well-accepted in the region for they are Amish tradition. It seems a perfect solution for her daughter, Mrs. Stephen S. Stoltzfus, since it allows family togetherness while maintaining independence. Mrs. Musser will certainly have more quiet in her cottage than she would in the main house with the Stoltzfus' three children aged 14 to 21.

One housing specialist has termed the arrangement "living intimately at a distance."

Mrs. Musser's new home is a detached, portable and self-contained living unit designed specifically for installation on lots of existing residences. All utilities tie into the larger facility. When she dies or moves, the zoning inspector of the township will require the Stoltzfus' to take the structure away. After its wood piers are sawed off, the property will look no different than it did before the cottage was placed there.

Produced by a local corporation, her home is also among the first modular housing units intended for elderly people in the United States. It has railings in the bath, wide doorways and convenient storage spaces that don't require much bending and stretching.

Sometimes referred to as granny flats, annexes, accessory living quarters or grand-parent cottages, the manufactured units are very popular in the state of Victoria, Australia, as public housing that enables older people and their families to live in close proximity. There has been such explosive demand for them that the city of Melbourne has a waiting list of 15 to 18 months.

In Lancaster, however, it has taken a concerted effort, a selling job, on the part of the Lancaster County Area Agency on Aging (AoA) to convince local residents, elected officials and planners that necessary zoning variances should be granted.

This fall a prototype was built in downtown Lancaster. Tours by the governor and other prominent officials received generous press coverage. Still the local zoning boards hesitated. They were concerned that certain dwellings would not have adequate water and sewer systems to bear the strain of a dependent unit. Only after many meetings did the county planning commission institute a procedure to give homeowners some relief from the paperwork necessary to obtain a variance. Finally, most of the townships in the county agreed to consider the use of elder cottages on a case-by-case basis. And the structure still must comply with zoning and state sewage requirements. So far, at least eight applications have been made.

Leo E. Baldwin of the National Retired Teachers Association/American Association of Retired Persons is promoting the use of elder cottages. He says it offers a solution to the problem of finding affordable housing for all Americans. "Eighty percent of the help received by older Americans comes from their families, but only 8 percent live with one another. A large majority live within an hour of their children and have daily or weekly contact," he said. "This is the basis for assuming that older people and adult children would like to live near one another if they had the space and privacy to do so."

"By providing affordable housing for the elderly you are reducing pressure for new single family units," he says. Elder cottages, which Baldwin calls "Elder Cottage Housing Opportunities (ECHO)," helps free existing and moderately priced housing stock. He likes the term ECHO because it implies that the little house echoes the appearance of the big one.

The success of elder cottages in Australia bodes well for their use in the United States, for the country has several things in common with the United States—besides English. Seventy percent of Australian houses are owner-occupied, for instance. Zoning classifications of urban areas are similar to those in American cities and single family homes usually have generous lots.

Barry W. Cooper, an official from the state of Victoria recently told a Washington symposium audience that the cottages have had no effect on the aesthetic appearance or value of homes. Nor does the state increase the taxes of those who host elder cottages.

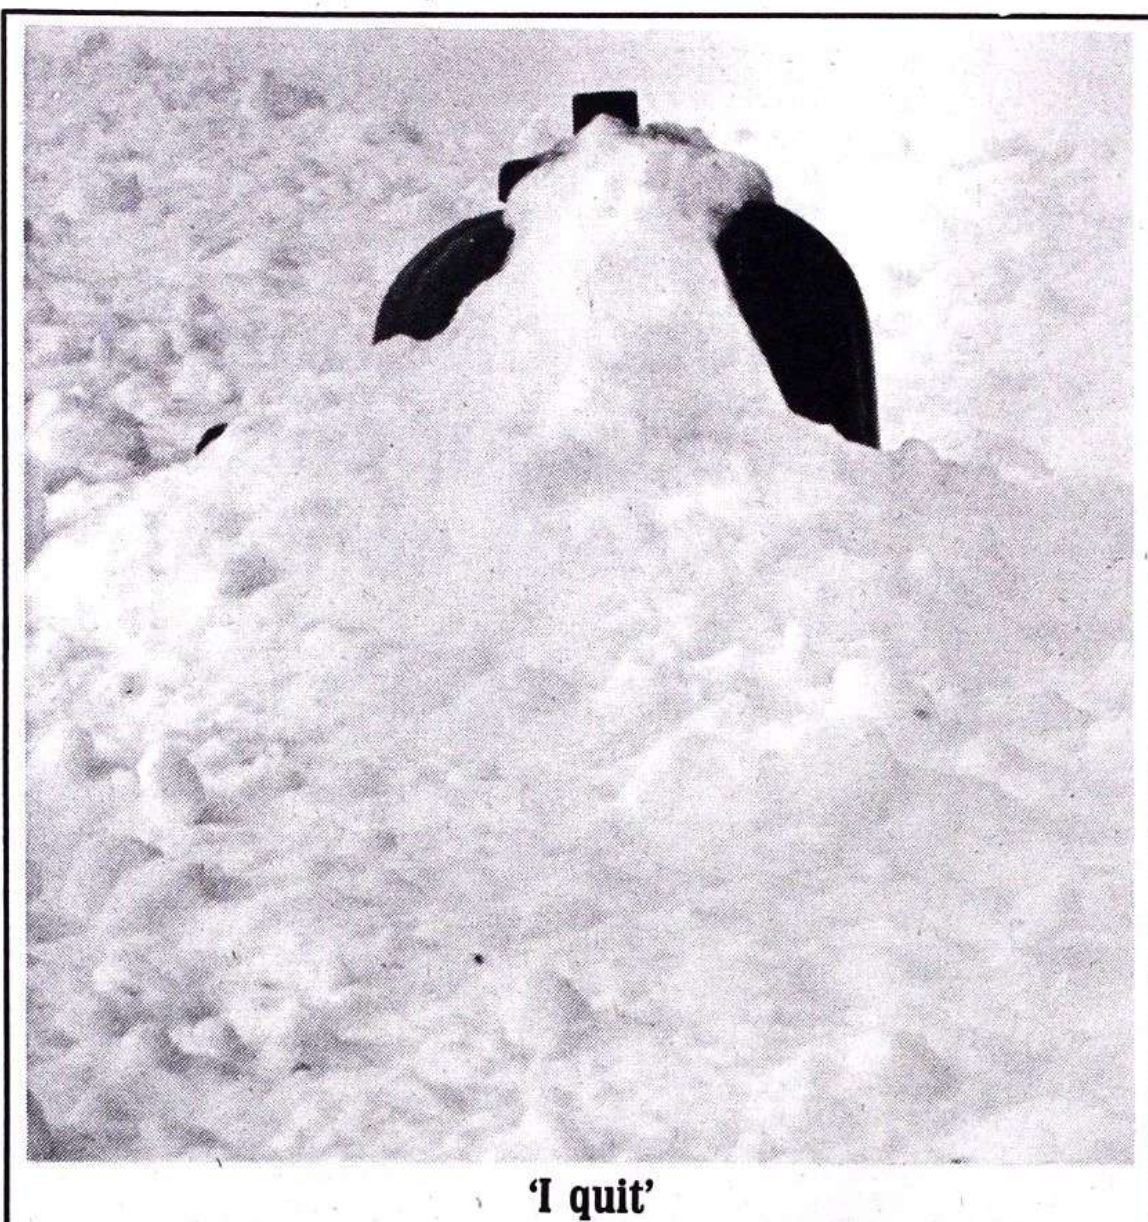

Obviously, Australian families have discovered that this system is a socially acceptable response to the financial, personal and physical needs of elderly parents.

But few local governments in the United States are willing to endorse the concept—let alone abate taxes. According to Baldwin, "There is almost universal opposition by officials."

Another viewpoint on W-W community college

One of the things that concerns us most about Mr. James McCartney's letter is his apparent panic and desire to abort this concept even before it has a chance to be reviewed and debated.

The Wayne-Westland Board of Education will not reach any decision on a community college until May.

We have directed that a series of public hearings be held, that community surveys be conducted, needs assessment be done, so that the wisdom, or lack of wisdom, of such a proposal will have a true test of reasonableness and investigation.

People in education, particularly higher education, have a responsibility to create new ideas, to seek the best approaches, to explore them, and to, very non-emotionally, analyze them prior to bringing closure to any given issue.

What is Trustee McCartney's motivation to try to abort this concept even before it is even examined? What is he afraid of?

Does he have some other agenda that is not clear? We can understand that Mr. McCartney would extol the virtues of WC3 of which he is a trustee. But, to what extent must he protect that turf?

Mr. McCartney's letter calls for cooperation. Let's look at the level of cooperation Wayne-Westland residents have received from Wayne County Community College in the past.

When the college first opened in 1969-70, we had a campus site here at John Glenn High School. We had another very close by in Inkster at the Milton Center. Last June, without any consultation, without any input, a letter arrived announcing the closing of those two centers. No member of the Board of Education, the Superintendent, or anyone, had been contacted concerning that issue and given an opportunity to argue the wisdom of such a decision, it was summarily and unilaterally reached and we had nothing to say about it. Now, I ask you, can anyone say that is a demonstration of willingness to cooperate?

In the first year that the Glenn site was opened, it had an enrollment of approximately 1,000 students. Today, the Western Center claims an enrollment of 266 students.

Mr. McCartney also claims that, "Collegewide there are 602 Wayne-Westland Community School District residents attending WC3."

We have requested, but have been denied, a print-out of these people and where they attend classes. WC3 officials gave us the 266 figure, some of whom were enrolled in the nursing program which is not taught at the Western Campus. Their unilateral decision to abandon Glenn has disenfranchised many of our residents and reduced accessible community college education for our residents. Is this a sign of working together?

Where Wayne-Westland residents go for community college is, by itself, abundant proof that Wayne County Community College is not servicing the residents of this community. Over 800 residents of Wayne-Westland are enrolled at Schoolcraft Community College and pay non-resident tuition. Nearly 450 are enrolled at Henry Ford Community College, also paying the extra tuition since they are non-residents.

Let's get it straight and clear that the WC3 Western Campus does not offer a full program. It has a limited curriculum which forces Wayne-Westland residents, if they desire to enroll at Wayne County Community College to go to other campus sites, one of which is down river and all of the others are in the City of Detroit. Don't be misled that the Western Campus is a full program. At an advisory committee meeting for Wayne County Community College held on January 21, 1982, three ladies from the Marshall Junior High School attendance area were at that meeting who had intended to enroll in secretarial classes. They were told that those classes were not being conducted there or had been cancelled and that they would have to enroll in the down river campus.

The Board of Education is considering this question for only one reason.

Our residents are being disenfranchised and are being hurt by the decision of Wayne County Community College to close the campus sites within our district and to offer limited programs. We did not create this situation, they did. We must respond to this situation as it presently exists. We have a need, a tremendous need, to help laid-off people get skills that will allow them to find a job in the "World of Work".

In addition, hundreds of people who have jobs must

Death of a police chief

By TOM MOORADIAN
Managing Editor

One could sense by the unsteady voice that it was difficult for the man at the other end of the telephone line to talk. He wanted to be cooperative, but he really didn't know what to say.

"They called me earlier in the day and asked me to come to work — and I really can't help you out," the Belleville police officer said. "And, hey, Jerry was a close friend of mine. Of all of us around here — we loved that guy."

There was a brief pause.

How could one continue to question him? Our destinies — and our lives had been linked only by telephone. I quickly thanked the officer and unsuccessfully tried another source.

Jerry Remus, the city of Belleville's police chief for the past two years was dead. He died early Tuesday morning, of apparent heart attack — the latter is not from a medical source, but from conversation rapidly coming over the telephones.

People wanted more information and no one had anything of consequence to offer. And that infamous newspaper deadline was at hand.

Do we go without the story and let rumors run rampant? Or do we tell the readers what we know — which isn't much? The cryptic information we have been able to compile is that Remus was found in the garage of his home. State Police and local police officers were at the scene and were investigating.

I was in contact with Chief Remus often.

Each Tuesday, I would telephone his office and he would give me a run-down on criminal activity in the city. Of late, we mainly discussed the weather, the storms, the abandoned cars. In fact, his last words to me were in the form of a plea to write something cautioning residents to move their cars off the roads so that the snow plows could get through.

Like most police officers, Chief Remus liked to quip when asked about crime: "Crime? In Belleville? You know we have an ordinance against that."

Chief Remus had only a small cadre of officers to fight crime within the city, but he always held them in the highest esteem. I guess that is one of the reasons why a man makes it or doesn't — when you treat a person with respect, he usually reciprocates.

He was a patient man, especially with people like myself whose job it was to get "the news."

We're going to hold open the front page of our Belleville Enterprise edition for him, in order to get the latest.

And there are only a few people around for whom we would reserve that honor.

Nankin issue was a farce

EDITOR—The Wayne City Council last week ordered the evacuation of the Nankin Building, formerly Nankin Hospital, without ever determining whether or not the city ever issued building permits authorizing the change of use from a hospital to an apartment-building house complex, nor whether the work performed with or without "permits" was inspected by the city or approved or disapproved after the completion.

Now the argument will undoubtedly have to be decided by the Circuit Court and the taxpayers of Wayne will have to pay again for the ineptness of those city officials and council members who were responsible for not resolving this issue years ago.

And for those council members who in effect voted to go to court rather than to do their jobs, I suggest that those officials involved might serve this community best by resigning.

Balancing the budget

EDITOR—I am writing this letter because I definitely feel more could be done in helping the cities and states than has been already done.

Balancing the Budget. This is an oft spoken term used by the President and his aides. A nice sounding phrase that envisions industry, the country, and the people in harmony. This is a phrase that all ills and pitfalls are hidden. It is a manipulating phrase used whenever the occasion arises. When aid of the needy is mentioned, or jobs, social programs needs beefing up, social security needs strengthening, in short anything pertaining in helping those in need we hear that "The budget has been set and we cannot at this time help due to 'balancing of the budget'."

It is altogether different when foreign aid, arms sale, when a nation is being wooed, when refugees enter our shores, when business needs financial assistance, when oil companies need a break, money is poured into these ventures without delay. Appropriation of funds to cover above needs are made. There is no mention of balancing the budget.

When a definite need of help for the following is requested, education, hospitalization, slum clearing, crime fighting, transportation, making certain that senior citizens are adequately fed and housed, jobs, etc. These should be treated as the above. Balancing of the budget should be forgotten and help rendered without worry of the budget. Since the beginning of our Government, "balancing of the budget" has been attempted time and again. It has not been achieved or will be. Why should programs be endangered in helping the majority because of this term?

As an example, consider each of our cities and states as foreign countries such as Poland, Saudia Arabia, Israel, Egypt, San Salvador, India, China, Japan, etc. and pour money, equipment and other aids that go to those countries into our cities and states. Even if each city and state got the same break as the big oil companies they would not have to worry about asking for help.

In plain fact, the government should forever shelve the term of "balancing the budget" and get down to Earth in maintaining and improving jobs, education, social programs, social security, humanitarian needs, police force, etc.

If the needs of the majority are neglected, then the needs of the U.S. will be equally neglected. We need "the government of the people, by the people, and for the people" more so than a government of Reagan, by Stockman, for the few.

Apportionment 'an injustice?'

EDITOR—On January 12, 1982, The Apportionment Commission of Wayne County committed a grave injustice to the citizens by forcing the so-called "Holley Plan" for redistributing down our throats. I say an injustice because Mr. Jim Killeen, our County Clerk, refused to present at least one proposed plan to that Commission for consideration. Mr. Killeen by the way is also chairman of the Apportionment Commission.

The "Holley Plan" is flawed in many ways. Among its flaws, one finds a totally unfair treatment of Western Wayne County. Upon examination, one wonders how such "surgery" can be justified.

The "Holley Plan" itself, however, is not the main problem that I wish to address. I strongly believe that all voters in Wayne County should be made aware of the fact that although the Apportionment Commission is charged to solicit and consider public input they have blatantly refused to do so. The attached plan was hand delivered to Mr. Killeen on January 12, 1982, which was the deadline for such input. He refused to present it to the Commission. Such callous disregard for his responsibility to the taxpayers and voters of Wayne County is inexcusable.

Unlike the plan which was adopted, this proposal makes a very successful effort at maintaining the integrity of existing community boundaries. It also makes an honest attempt to consolidate communities with common interests, such as the Plymouth-Canton area, Dearborn Heights, etc., into their own districts instead of slicing them up and leaving the powerless. These are very important considerations that I feel were completely ignored by the Commission in its haste to pass the "Holley Plan."

In closing, I must say that although my plan may not be the optimum solution, it makes far more sense than the one that was adopted. I feel that it was at least worthy of formal acknowledgement and consideration by the Commission. In refusing to consider this or any other plans so presented, Mr. Killeen and the Commission at best short-changed the taxpayers of Wayne County.

Debs hiring clarified

EDITOR—Once again there seems to be misunderstanding on the part of Kay and Joe Daley (referencing their letter of February 3rd).

I did not recommend Richard Debs for the position of Police Officer on the Van Buren Township Police Department. His recommendations were from Supervisor Pat Cullin, and Treasurer Tom Welty as mentioned at the November 10th meeting.

I did a pre-employment check - not knowing he had two names, going only on information given me. His record was clear.

Richard Debs was raised to Police Commander three months later with the full backing of Treasurer Welty, Supervisor Cullin and trustee Chester Wojcie, who were my chain of command at the November 10th meeting.

Lt. Gary Holloway who had vehemently objected a few days earlier - publicly stated at this same meeting that Mr. Debs was the best man for the job.

On December 29th at a Special Meeting called by the Board to form a Committee to Research the Appointment of Commander, and as stated at the Meeting to protect the Civil Rights of the Commander, Supervisor Cullin asked four members of the Police Department who attended if they would address the Board as to how they felt about the Commander.

The four, led by Officer Joe Didia, Lt. Holloway, Sgt. Roger Bernard (who asked that it be read into the record that he supported Commander Debs 100 percent), and Officer Lancaster, all spoke in support of the Commander.

Perhaps this caused the confusion in their mind. You should be addressing your remarks to them. I retired at the end of November.

Party switch GOP's fault?

EDITOR—We would like to respond to the letter signed by the Secretary of the Belleville area Republican Club. (Belleville Enterprise 2/3/82).

The secretary states that Van Buren Township Trustee Tim Toohey's "perspective and principles have changed" since his election in November 1980. We, as long time Republicans, cannot agree with this assessment.

Trustee Tim Toohey's decision to switch parties is consistent with the switch of other elected officials from this area in the past. (From Republican to Democratic parties).

In our opinion this is a reflection on the demagogic leadership of the Republican party in the Van Buren-Belleville area. Maybe reflection on their "Perspective and principles" would reveal that they and not Trustee Toohey do not have the best interest of the community at heart.

The signer of the letter was overheard at the open meeting of the Belleville Republican Club (November 23, 1981) stating that he (Trustee Toohey) "had to go." Go where?

The signer of the letter (an area Republican leader?) stated that records show what transpired at the meetings of the Belleville area Republican Club. Ah yes, the records show what motions were made and passed but what other discussions were held at scheduled meetings and also between members of the "elite" officers at cabal meetings?

Could the discussions have been focused on "recall" of elected officials as a means of satisfying the desires of the Republican leadership without a thought of the "welfare of the community"?

The vicious diatribe by the Secretary of the Belleville area Republican Club against Trustee Toohey is typical of the narrow-minded thinking of the personalities who at the present time are trying to form a Republican nucleus in this area.

Until we get fair minded Republican leadership there cannot be a strong Republican base in the Van Buren-Belleville geographic area.

At the present time GOP leadership will not accept opinions adverse to their way of thinking. Their despotic motto is "Our way or No way!"

Elderly cottages

cials to revise existing zoning provisions to make way for elder cottages.

He advocates creation of non-profit housing corporations to own the buildings, lease them to landowners, administer the program and be responsible to local authorities.

Peter Dys, Lancaster County's AoA director, says elder cottages are a great value. He compares the $16,000 cost to that of a $25,000 to $30,000 high rise public housing unit. But when Dys became interested in the project, he turned to local businessmen rather than seek government funds. Here's why:

Two years ago William E. Hanna, mayor of Rockville, Md., persuaded his city council to appropriate $60,000 for elder cottages, but failed to win matching funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Rockville, a city in Montgomery County, Md., has even more demand for affordable housing than Lancaster does. There are 75,000 elderly people in the county, 20,000 live alone. The county is losing 1,250 to 1,350 rental units a year to condominium conversion.

Thanks to private industry, not government, Dys has his first few elder cottages. Hanna doesn't.

Even the most minor legislative changes are slow in coming. California has passed legislation to enable local governments to allow use of elder cottages, but few, if any, municipalities have taken advantage of the new law. Kitsap County and Seattle, Wash., permit what they call "accessory living quarters." And a few firms, including ones in Upper Shore, Md., and Santa Maria, Calif., are planning senior citizen communities composed of clustered elder cottages.

The increasing popularity of age-segregated retirement villages is based on the myth that older people are happiest among their own. Elder cottages allow re-creation of the extended family. Their use would be a major step toward an integrated society. It would open up affordable housing for all.

seek new training, either to hold on to their job or to be transferred when their present position is no longer needed. That is our only thrust, to try to respond to the Governor's call in his recent message to the Legislature "that there must be expanded vocational-technical training."

Wayne-Westland has facilities, the background, and the ability to deliver on that call, and to help citizens receive community college education much less expensively than they can do it any other place.

So let the record stand on these points, but most importantly, let an honest and true assessment of this question go on without all types of charges and emotional outbursts throughout the community. If this proposal cannot stand on merits, then it should die and it will not have my support. But, if it can stand the test of review, if it is in the best interest of Wayne-Westland residents, then it should be brought into existence and will have my support.

Our district has recently opened the William D. Ford Vocational Technical Center which would be the focal point for the Community College program.

Governor Milliken has recommended that because of Michigan's extremely high unemployment rate, more funds will have to be allocated for training and retraining our work force. Technology and increased automation will require more vocational training for people to qualify for available jobs.

Wayne-Westland is in the planning, reviewing, exploring, asking stage. We know that using the existing buildings, staff, and administrative departments of the K-12 program would allow a K-14 program to be offered at less expense than that of other community colleges which have separate administration and full time staff. Therefore, the college portion of our program would be less expensive and self-supporting.

If we are convinced that it meets the needs of our community we will request that the State designate Wayne-Westland a K-14 school system. We would not consider a plan to simply duplicate the program of other community colleges. We would expect our administrators to receive the assistance of our local business and labor leaders in the preparation of a program which would train people for jobs which exist and for which there is a need. Our standards require that the needs of our community be met, that taxes not be increased and that our K-12 system not be harmed in any way. After our school and community surveys and our public hearings, we will determine whether or not to petition the state for K-14 status.

We need your advice and counsel and also an opportunity to explain our plans and answer questions much more thoroughly than can be addressed here. We cordially invite and encourage you to attend any of the following public hearings.

Tuesday, February 16, 7 p.m., Marshall Jr. High

Tuesday, March 9, 7 p.m., Stevenson Jr. High

Wednesday, March 10, 7 p.m., Adams Junior High

Thursday, March 11, 7 p.m., Franklin Junior High

After a thorough review and complete analysis of community interest, the Wayne-Westland Board of Education will decide in late Spring whether to request K-14 designation from the State of Michigan Board of Education.

We need your cooperation in helping to make this decision.

Reflections

The Ice Man cometh

The other evening I watched the special on Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The fire was burning cheerily in the fireplace and the house was warm and quiet, even though outside a blizzard was puffing up its strength, and a few hours earlier I had heard dire warnings in a forecast of further economic depression, in spite of President Reagan's optimistic forecast.

I could have felt depressed. I probably should have felt depressed, and yet as I looked around me, at my husband, comfortably lounging in his Lazy-Boy, Uncle Gunnar bringing in the coffee tray, careful not to trip over the telephone cord stretched out across the living floor and into the den, where our youngest was happily carrying on a conversation with an admirer, I couldn't, somehow, feel depressed about my own life. But my heart hurt for those out there who are not as fortunate.

And somehow, for a brief moment, I thoroughly understood my own mother, who through the depression, sought out those who were less fortunate than she, and attempted to share whatever she had with them. Our back door was always opened to strangers, hobos we called them, who had found their way from the banks of the Snake River, up through the winding lane to the lighted windows of our home.

And the food in the pot on the stove would be stretched for one more mouth, and sometimes she would urge the hungry man to spend the night in a warm clean bed, particularly if there were blizzard conditions threatening.

One evening when I was very young, the wind was howling outside, and icy snow was slashing across the window panes, setting the old farm house to shivering and shuddering, a sound which struck terror to my heart, and I ran through the living room, and the dining room, swung through the swinging door into the kitchen to find mother just opening the back door.

Standing on the porch was a real snowman. Little icicles hung from his beard, and he shivered in a thin old coat that barely came together over his chest, even though that chest was skinny and bent inwards.

"Ma'am," he said before he collapsed.

"Charles, Charles," my mother shrieked as she bent over the prostrate form. My dad came running from somewhere in the middle of the house, and he leaned over and lifted the ice-man into his strong arms and laid him on the window seat, not too far from the cook stove which was sending out warmth into the blue and white kitchen. As father pulled off the frozen clothes he sent me running upstairs for blankets and mother pulled the big old wash tub from the store room, just off the kitchen. From the reservoir in the stove she dipped hot water into the tub, and at last father gently laid the ice-man into the warm, warm water.

It was only then he remembered his little girls standing around goggle-eyed, and he shushed us into the dining room where we peeked through a crack of the swinging door. It was a long time before the iceman opened his eyes, and weak as he was, he made a gesture to lift himself out of that tub, and his horrified eyes rested on mother's rosy cheeks and dark hair as she helped father pour the warm water over his shivering body.

"There, man, there," my father said. "Now we will wrap you in something warm, and Syb, here will get some hot soup in you."

It was only after he had been wrapped in warm blankets and was allowing my mother to spoonfeed him the hot soup, that my sister and I were allowed back into the room.

He stayed with us the rest of the winter and in the spring he helped my father's hired man plow the fields and make ready for summer.

MONA GRIGG

But I could tell all about somebody else. . . Maybe Maggie would let me ghost-write her third book. (Oh, there will be a third book—you can bet on it.)

We could call it "A Space Cadet in Never-Never Land," and it could be dedicated to her grandchildren—who will wonder ever more how they could have grown old 20 years before their grandmother did.

Then I could suggest to her that she write another book—with my help, of course—in which she explains to her grandchildren—(and everyone else) just how that did happen. Stressing, to be sure, that she, Margaret, did it all by herself—with no help from their mean old grandfather, may he rest in peace

High cost of pain and shame

I read in the paper the other day that Maggie Trudeau, the 33-year-old female Peter Pan (I'll never grow up, I'll never grow up. . .) and estranged wife (she's estrange, all right) of Pierre, Prime Minister of Canada, is writing a sequel to her earlier autobiography.

If it strikes you as odd, as it did me (everything about Maggie strikes me as odd), that a 33-year-old could have done enough in that short span of time to have filled the pages of not one, but two books, let me assure you that she worked hard at it, and, as a consequence (that's the name of her new book—"Consequences"), suffered much pain. (No, I don't know what kind of pain—it was just before breakfast when I read that and it seemed best at the time not to pursue it.)

She's going to tell all, and I mean ALL, this time, about her dalliances with sex and drugs because she's real mad at Pierre, who—Mean Daddy—refused to give her any more money after their separation.

She promises to tell all about how rotten he's been to her, even though he knew all about her financial problems. (I can only guess at what she must be going through—what with Studio 54 having risen again from the ashes, and her with no money. Sad—so sad.)

But, as Maggie tells it, "while there's a certain amount of pain from exhibiting one's failures and shames, it was financially necessary to write it to support my own lifestyle."

Good Grief! You mean that's all there is to it? You mean all I had to do was write a book about my failures and shames and then tell the world (and those nice publishers) that I wrote it because I need enough money to support me in the lifestyle of my choosing—and they would have felt instant sorrow for my plight and bought it?

It's almost too good to be true, but if that's all it takes, give me a year. . .

I'll give you such failure and shame. And if I don't come up with enough by then, I'll make some up. No big deal. . . I'll read Maggie's book to find out how it's done.

Airman Bernard L. Weinberg Jr., son of Bernard L. Weinberg of 17 Oak Blvd., Belleville, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force aircraft maintenance training course at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas.

Graduates of the course were trained in aircraft maintenance, repair and service, and earned credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Weinberg will now serve at Grissom Air Force Base, Ind., with the 305th Organizational Maintenance Squadron. He is a 1981 graduate of Lincoln Consolidated High School, Ypsilanti.

Air Force Master Sgt. Richard H. Bost, son of Edward H. and Jennie L. Bost of 6218 Colf Road, Carleton, has been decorated with the Meritorious Service Medal at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

The Meritorious Service Medal is awarded specifically for outstanding non-combat meritorious achievement or service to the United States.

Bost, a recruiter with the 3504th U.S. Air Force Recruiting Group, is a 1961 graduate of Airport Community High School, Carleton.

Richard Lee Cottongim, son of William A. and Susan Kemp of 15605 Harriet, Romulus, has been promoted in the U.S. Army to the rank of specialist four.

Cottongim, a combat engineer with the 194th Armored Brigade at Fort Knox, Ky., is a 1980 graduate of Romulus Senior High School.

Spec. 4 Jerome D. Perry, son of Charles and Carolyn Lowmaster of 8989 Parkwood Manner Blvd., Belleville, has arrived for duty at Giessen, West Germany.

Perry, a truck driver with the 4th Transportation Command, was previously assigned at Fort Polk, La.

Army Pvt. Jacki L. Moore, daughter of Sherman L. and Merry H. Moore of 7929 Marlowe, Belleville, has completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C.

During the training, students receive instructions in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

She is a 1981 graduate of Belleville High School.

Airman Ted M. Wisniewski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore N. Wisniewski of 40320 Alden Drive, Belleville, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

The airman, who is remaining at Lackland for specialized training in the security police field, studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Completion of this training earned the individual credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

He is a 1980 graduate of Belleville High School.

Airman Ricky A. Eshelman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Eshelman of 36560 Bismarck, New Boston, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks at Lackland, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits towards an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now begin on-the-job training in the structural/pavements field at Grand Forks Air Force Base, N.D.

Eshelman is a 1979 graduate of Huron High School, New Boston.

From VA's office

Vets' benefits not taxable

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.)

Q—Do I report my Veterans Administration benefits on my Federal income tax for 1981?

A—No. By law, veterans benefits are not taxable and should not be reported to any taxing authority (Federal, State, City, etc.).

Q—I've just moved and am wondering if the Post Office will forward my VA compensation check to my new address?

A—Yes. Checks issued under laws administered by the VA may be forwarded if the payee has moved and filed a regular change of address with the U.S. Postal Service. However there is a time limit that the Post Office will forward VA payments. You should notify your nearest VA office of your new address as soon as possible. You might also consider contacting your bank to have your VA payments deposited directly to your account.

Q—Can I buy a VA repossessed home if I am not a veteran?

A—Yes. The VA sells repossessed homes to any individual who has a good credit rating.

Q—Will my wife's income help me qualify for a GI home loan through the VA?

A—Yes. The VA has been giving full recognition to income of both veterans and spouses in determining ability to repay GI bill loans.

Annapolis receives stamp of approval

Annapolis Hospital in Wayne has received full accreditation for two years from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH).

The JCAH committee surveyed the hospital in September, and recently notified the hospital of its findings. During the accreditation process, the JCAH survey team, including a physician, nurse, hospital administrator and laboratory technologist, visited Annapolis to evaluate its standards of care in 24 different areas or departments.

Notification that the hospital has been accredited for the maximum period allowed, two years, indicates that Annapolis was in compliance with the professional standards of the commission.

The Annapolis alcoholism therapy program received two-year JCAH accreditation at the same time.

JCAH is a private, not-for-profit organization created by and composed of health care professionals. It is governed by the representatives of five national health care organizations — the American College of Surgeons, the American College of Physicians, the American Dental Association, the American Hospital Association and the American Medical Association.

Hospitals voluntarily seek accreditation from the commission as a means of evaluating their quality of service measured against high standards of care.

DENTAL X-RAYS

For a dentist to conduct a complete dental examination without using dental x-rays, is like watching TV with your eyes closed.

"Why," you may ask, "can't the dentist use his eyes and trusty mirror to do the same diagnosis?" Because, as the "unsinkable" Titanic discovered, like icebergs, most serious dental trouble is beneath the surface and out of view.

Dental x-rays often reveal beginning decay between the teeth or beneath a filling or at the bottom of a narrow pit or groove in the chewing surface. The amount of bone supporting teeth that has been destroyed by periodontal disease, the development of root abscesses and cysts, the presence of unerupted teeth or broken root fragments or impacted teeth can only readily be determined by x-rays since these abnormalities are normally hidden from view.

With modern, shielded equipment and high speed x-ray film, only a very small amount of x-ray radiation is required to take a complete set of pictures. It's then we normally receive from illuminated watch faces. The X-ray camera is one of the dentist's most valuable diagnostic tools.

What's That Sound?

By STEVE O'LEARY

Paul Collins has the right beat

PAUL COLLINS' Beat
"The Kids Are The Same"
(Columbia)

Formerly known as The Beat, Paul Collins and the band have added to their fame to avoid confusion with the English Beat. Fat chance though.

For while the latter are an admittedly ok ska band,

Paul Collins' Beat is one of the finest pop bands of the past decade, as their debut LP, titled simply "The Beat," proved to all who heard it.

Now, close to two years later, their follow-up album is finally here. And yes, it was worth the wait.

As a pop tunesmith, Paul Collins may be second only to Nick Lowe, and the opening cut here, "That's What Life Is All About," bears a remarkable resemblance (in its basic sound) to Rockpile, Lowe's former band. With it's Buddy Holly-like drums pushed to the forefront, the song aims to let you dance to some romance: "What good is one heart without the other. What good is my life without you?"

Guitarist Larry Whitman plays some nifty licks on "Dreaming," which should be an obvious choice for radio airplay, with its infectious backbeat practically forcing you to move to it.

Other highlights include "Crying Won't Help," which sounds like the best new Beach Boys' song in years; "Met Her Yesterday," a ballad which shows a new side of the Beat; and the rave-up closer, "I Will Say No."

Musically, "Trapped" is another fine song, but the lyrics just don't make it. Guys, do what you do best — sing about cars and girls, and leave politics in this case the hostage situation to the Clash. After all, cars and girls are nothing to be ashamed of...well, I suppose it depends on the car and the girl...

The title cut shows Paul Collins at his very best, with a good melody, a catchy riff, with totally teen-age lyrics wrapped around them.

"Well I don't care too much about politics
And I don't like to read the news
'Cause my backyard still looks the same to me
And I know, tomorrow I gotta mow the lawn
The kids are the same
Yeah, the kids are the same
Everywhere I go..."

Personally, I think that's great stuff, and in any case it sure beats Ozzie Ozone biting the heads off of animals. (oh wow, like what a statement!) eh? So tell me why Paul Collins' Beat isn't at the top of the rockpile yet?

Certainly not for lack of talent. I think their time is coming soon.

Riverview Highlands offers Winterfest fun

So you thought snow was only a white substance to be cursed at...

Promoters of the Winterfest 1982 festivities this weekend, sponsored by the Riverview Highlands and Anheuser Busch, are determined to prove to the public that snow cannot deter from fun and games.

And just about every type of game imaginable — whether spring, fall or summer oriented — will be attempted at the Riverview Highlands, located at 15015 Sibley, and at nearby sites.

Included among the events are a torch ski show, an ice fishing tournament, downhill and tubing races, snow sculpturing, pro tennis exhibition, the Frost Bite Open for brave golfers and many other unusual yet entertaining activities.

Winterfest begins at 1 p.m. Friday with the crowning of the Winter Queen at Riverview High School and runs thru Sunday at the Downriver area's only ski facility.

In addition to the crowning of the queen, Friday events scheduled are women's tennis exhibition, 8-9 p.m. at the Downriver Racquet Club; torch ski show, 8 p.m., Highlands; and a bon fire at 8:30 p.m. at the Highlands.

On the Saturday agenda are snow races at 11 a.m.; ice skating races at 10:30 a.m. at the reflection pond; a snow ball, softball competition at 1 p.m. at Young Patriots Field in Riverview; ice fishing from 1 to 5 p.m. at reflection pond; a hot chocolate and donut sale from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. at the Riverview Community Center, and the Frost Bite Golf Open at 10 a.m. at the Highlands Golf Course.

The Highlands will be the site for the following Sunday festivities: Costume Day; tubing races, 11 a.m.; downhill races, 1 p.m.; snow sculpture competition, 2 p.m.; a Winterfest Spirit Jug presentation to the top point winners in various competitions, 3 p.m., and an all day barbeque.

Pre-registration for all events is recommended, according to Recreation Director Michael Shea. Information on any of the Winterfest events can be obtained by calling 479-4333. For an update on the daily skiing conditions at the Highlands, contact the 24-hour snophone at 479-2080.

Riverview Highlands features eight new slopes and five new lifts, all fully lighted. The Sportsman's Den offers dining and dancing for the winter enthusiasts.

Fonda—award performance

"On Golden Pond,"
Universal Pictures.
Directed by Mark Rydell.
Written by Ernest Thompson.
Starring Henry Fonda,
Katharine Hepburn, Jane Fonda. Rated "PG".

By J.T. YURKO
Special to Playtime

Certainly "On Golden Pond" is one of the most eagerly awaited films of the year.

Insiders who managed to attend early screenings of the film came out with nothing but raves for Henry Fonda's performance, saying he was practically a shoe-in for an Academy Award.

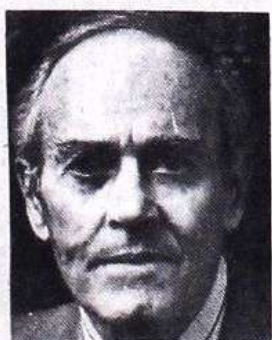

On this point I have no argument. Henry Fonda's portrayal of a witty but cantankerous old man knowing that death is just around the corner is one of the best performances of his career, and when you've had a career like Fonda's, that's saying a lot.

But the film itself leaves much to be desired. For Henry Fonda's as well as Kate Hepburn's performances, this film should be seen, but expect little more than that.

Notice that I've taken care to say Henry Fonda's performance, as Jane Fonda also has a key role in the film, that of Henry Fonda's daughter — definitely a role she was...er...born to play.

Her character is part of what's wrong with the film, and in truth, it's not really her fault. The script by Ernest Thompson, based on his own play, calls for Jane and Henry to be at odds.

She was a kind daughter, but never really a friend to her father. Perhaps he wanted a son. Perhaps he was just too overbearing. Perhaps. We never find out.

To be sure, Henry Fonda has some of the funniest one-liners and comebacks seen in many a moon — lines Neil Simon would give his Smith-Corona for. Yet even that is at odds with the film's plot.

Here's Jane Fonda, come to visit this wonderfully witty, delightful old man who keeps the audience in stitches, but for some reason Jane is in tears. We never know the reason why she slips into a twitching neuroses at the very sight of her father when the film has so marvelously depicted him as a crafty old codger.

The other part of the story, that of Hank Fonda and a typical California 12-year-old and their relationship, is far more convincing and much more enjoyable.

Director Mark Rydell makes the most of a wacky but witty script, and Thompson's script in the hand of Fonda and Hepburn is a joy from minute to minute, but in overall perspective it loses its gloss to fuzzy motivations.

Kings of Africa coming to Inkster

Budweiser's Great Kings of Africa, a widely acclaimed collection of African leaders' portraits painted by some of America's best known contemporary artists, will be displayed at the Inkster Recreation Complex, 2025 Middlebelt, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Feb. 11.

The exhibit features 14 paintings and has been viewed by an estimated 10 million people since the Great Kings series was launched in 1976. All paintings are open for public inspection at no charge.

Two new paintings depict Shamba Bolongongo, former monarch of the Congo, and Khama, former king of what is now Botswana. The exhibits are sponsored by the local Anheuser-Busch wholesalers.

A strawberry sweet for your Valentine

Aphrodisiacs have been a subject of curiosity, controversy and discussion over the centuries. The word, derived from Aphrodite, the ancient Greek goddess of love, implies a love stimulus.

It's said that foods which are aphrodisiacs strongly appeal to our sense of taste, sight and touch. Many ancient cultures thought desserts to be a love food.

Whether you believe this folklore or not, one dessert you'll surely love is Strawberry Streusel Cake. It's a rich butter cake with a delightful strawberry filling. A delicious way to say, "Be My Valentine."

Make this cake by baking it in a heart-shaped cake pan, or use a 9-inch round cake pan. For a sweetheart look, cut out a shallow heart-shaped piece of cake and spoon in strawberry filling. Then top with cake crumbs and sliced almonds. It's a romantic Valentine's Day dessert sure to woo the hearts of your loved ones.

Because fresh strawberries are not yet in season, this strawberry filling is made with frozen sweetened strawberries. Available in 10-ounce cartons, sliced frozen berries are convenient and easy to use. Also available are whole frozen unsweetened strawberries in 20-ounce bags.

Frozen strawberries can be used just like fresh in fruit salads and compotes, gelatin molds, blender drinks, parfaits and even shortcake. For example, sliced and sweetened berries spooned over pound cake and topped with clouds of whipped cream is a quick shortcut.

According to ancient legend, strawberries are potent aphrodisiacs because of their many tiny seeds which denote fertility, abundance and virility. So go ahead and indulge in this sensuous fruit -- but watch out for its reputed mystical powers!

Strawberry Streusel Cake

½ cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup sugar
2 eggs

1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon soda
½ cup buttermilk
Powdered sugar
Strawberry Filling (recipe follows)
¼ cup sliced almonds

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and vanilla; beat fluffy. Stir in sifted dry ingredients alternately with buttermilk, beating just until well blended. Spread batter in greased and floured 9-inch cake pan. Bake in 325 degree oven 45 to 50 minutes, or until cake tests done. Cool in pan 10 minutes, then remove to rack to cool completely. Cut a shallow heart shape around top of cake about 1 inch from edges. With a fork scoop out cake to make a shallow well, reserving crumbs for topping. Dust top and sides of cake generously with powdered sugar. Spoon cooled strawberry filling into center. Shower with reserved crumbs and sliced almonds; sprinkle with powdered sugar. Cut in wedges and serve at once, or refrigerate until serving time. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Strawberry Filling

¼ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen sliced strawberries with sugar, thawed
2 tablespoons lime or lemon juice

In saucepan, combine sugar and cornstarch; stir in thawed berries and juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring, until thickened and clear. Add lime juice. Cool. Makes about 2 cups Strawberry Filling.

Newcomers on the scene

Jaclyn Ann Evans

A touch of pink has been added to the home of Richard and Joyce Evans of 9476 Barry, Romulus, who, on Jan. 30 welcomed their first daughter, Jaclyn Ann, at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne.

From Charles Town, W. Va. comes word of the birth of a baby boy to Pete and Gayle Plourde. The Jan. 4 arrival, who was titled "Kiell Jeremy", weighed 6 lbs., - 5 ozs. and measured 21 inches.

He is the new baby brother of 5-year-old Shawn Plourde and the second grandson of Mrs. Don (Lee) Walls of Belleville. His proud great-grandmother, also a Belleville resident, is Mrs. May Chapman. Paternal grandparents are the Earl Plourdes of Gladstone.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Births of area babies as well as those from other cities and states with local connections may be phoned into the Enterprise-Roman office, 697-9191, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. throughout the week. Forms are also available and will be mailed on request.)

Romulus Oakbrooke Nursery among "Y's" to be honored

Fair Lane, home of Henry Ford I. will be the site of the gala 38th Annual Meeting and Awards Presentation of the YWCA of Western Wayne County.

Marie Bright, Chairman announced that activities will get under way at 6:30 p.m. with a wine and cheese reception in the dining room of the mansion. YWCA President Elizabeth Burch will pay special tribute in her annual report to 11 outstanding YWCA groups. Among groups to be honored is Oakbrooke YWCA Nursery of Romulus.

One highlight of the evening will be a visit by Mary Todd Lincoln, as presented in dramatic monologue by Wilma Manery.

Mrs. Manery of Berkley, an active YW HUB member, has made her moving presentation to audiences for 15 years.

Special program volunteer awards will be presented to John Barnes and Dora Nerowski of the HUB and Connie Landini and Judi Van Landegend of the Taylor Nursery.

The festivities conclude with the surprise announcement of the YWCA Woman of the Year.

Tickets for the evening are $7. Reservations may be made by calling the YWCA 561-4110.

"I can't tell if genius is hereditary because heaven has granted me no offspring."

James McNeill Whistler said it.

potpourri By Lee Smith Suburban Living Editor

Communal living never had much appeal for me -- I like my privacy and particularly in the bedroom. Listening to ONE man z-z-z-ing his way through eight hours of pillow time each night is quite enough for this borderline insomniac.

But there are times when one simply has no choice as to where she beds down for the night. And on a recent Sunday with the winds doing re-runs of two previous weekends, whipping the snow into a frenzy and causing utter chaos for travelers, we vacationers-three found ourselves bunking enmasse with similarly-stranded folks in the hotel lobby at Metro Airport.

Having said farewell to sunny Freeport in the Bahamas some 10 hours earlier and then being teased by 80-degree temps in Miami, it was with disbelief (and disgust at ourselves) that we were landing in a near-blinding blizzard. Finding the airport shut down, sitting an hour and a half on board a cramped airliner waiting for a gate to be cleared for our disembarkation and facing up to the fact we'd not be able to get home kinda took the glow off our little holiday. The topper was the realization we'd simply been dumped -- that Republic had no further obligation to us once we went through that gate.

With our car and friends to pick us up a mere 10 minutes away, it was ironic and irritating that we could not get out or they IN. And, to add to our already bruised feelings (or should I say "numb" after all that sitting?) there was no room at the inn or at any of the surrounding complexes. We were stuck for the night!

Being turned down at the desk, we targeted in on the nearest seating -- mini benches (padded, thankfully) surrounding a huge artificial fern which somehow managed to find its way into an ear or an eye each time we turned. 'Twas uncomfortable to say the least and particularly since we'd not "bothered" to haul coats of any sort along on our tropical sojourn.

The management of the hotel did nothing to make our impromptu stay in that very drafty, cavernous lobby the least bit pleasant despite the fact TV-2 reported they were going to supply mats for the weary folks in their midst.

Yes, television was there to record the massive "sleep-in" and during that eleven o'clock coverage you may have seen a trio huddling over cups of hot coffee. That was us!

Carefully watching the nearby couches and settees, we eventually pounced on a vacated love seat which was to be our posture-pedic cradle for the next seven hours.

It was unbelievable how quickly some people could fall asleep. Two old gents, side by side on a short sofa, managed to find oblivion by stretching their legs, dropping their heads back (and their mouths open) and then performing a nasal duet the likes of which you've never heard.

They say people are most vulnerable (and unattractive) when they're sleeping or eating and out of kindness (etiquette) one should not watch his fellow man in those poses. (Is that why I stayed awake all night?)

Another young fella, who'd been up and down umpteen times, seemed to discover a catch in his throat each time he went prone and spent the night clearing his windpipes and sinuses and twitching his jack-knifed body with each sound. (God forbid he was somebody's roommate, I remarked.) Had he been closer to the snoring duo, he'd have helped make musical history -- or scared the evil spirits out of their nasty wits.

The Traverse City traveler next to us, a young man attempting to get some shut-eye, jumped everytime our snorter trumpeted. Already agitated by the weather-provoked situation, he was missing a very important job interview in Chicago scheduled for that morning and didn't much appreciate the "lullaby."

Two young gals (early 20's) had been marooned since morning (their Baltimore destination being socked in with fog.) Wearing warm coats and having ski jackets in their totes, they were nestled in comfortably for their ordeal until some presumptuous turkey decided he's make it a cozy threesome. He somehow managed to sandwich himself between them (on a love seat, yet!) and it wasn't long before first one and then the other gal was mustered out of their nest by a too-cuddly intruder.

A light sleeper, I, it was a long stretch of reading and watching since the cold from the concourse, the wheeze of the floor washers and waxers, the clatter of the cleaning ladies' wheeled buckets, the click of high heels and cowboy boots, the warning beeps of the airport carts and the chatter of passers-by (unaware they were invading a bedroom) managed to keep me from nodding off.

So -- while Sue tossed and turned next to me and BG paced off the distance between the two terminals, did newspaper and coffee runs, conversed with other nocturnal strollers and attempted to find a way out for us, I people-watched. The scene included those kind enough to share a seat and the self-centered who took up whole couches; the dignified businessman who, reduced by exhaustion, was sleeping on a hard floor; the cute elderly couple who eventually donned stocking caps and held hands to keep warm; the young lady very much concerned with her grandmother's comfort; the couple who played gin until the wee hours and -- the hustler.

The hustler -- that clean-cut, handsome guy I'd noticed earlier -- made his introductions about midnight by saying he'd decided not to use his room (key dangling from fingers enticingly) and was going to sell it; would we be interested?

BG was not present for the offer so I told him I'd have to wait and talk to my husband. He was going to offer the room to others, he said, but would wait and give me first chance. After about 15 minutes, I became rather curious and asked just how much he was "selling" his room for. And he very coolly answered, "Two hundred."

The lady in me prevailed -- despite the fact I envisioned the peace sign with only the taller half showing. I was tired, remember, with a kink in my neck and a crink in my back and he lucked out because my mouth was also out of whack.

Back at one of the coffee shops in the meantime, BG'd met up with the wife of a fellow Kiwanian from our town who, like us, was stranded BUT -- with wheels, a station wagon! And she was scared to attempt the long trip home. Seeing the sudden lively glint in BG's eyes, his daughter and I immediately vetoed any thought of HIS driving us out of there (we had no winter garb, you'll recall, and we had visions of summer clothes in a snow drift.)

Beth in quilted coat and high boots joined our little commune and, on learning how cold we were, whipped out a pair of socks for Sue and a woolen stole for me. Ah -- just to have something warm around my neck!

It was surprising to hear the morning News being delivered around 5 a.m. and we soon were perusing the pages which told in detail of Old Man Winter's antics EXCEPT it didn't even know the airport was completely closed. It still had one runway open -- somewhere!

The public john, fortunately, was private when we did a few morning ministrations and learned that paper toweling does not make for good facial use.

Around six, people suddenly came alive again with an outpouring of elevator passengers refreshed from their cozy nights in twins, doubles and kings. Breakfast was a long time coming since the chef hadn't shown up on time -- and overpriced when it did materialize!

Getting our luggage from security, BG then proceeded to help Beth find her car while Sue and I dug in our bags for sweaters and the only closed shoes I had -- Keds! One-lane traffic on the freeway got us into Belleville where our dear pal was waiting with car, coats, boots, hats, gloves.

The calm after the storm was unbelievable and astonishingly beautiful! Had this really happened to us or had we really been in our comfortable family room WATCHING television -- when Channel 2 zeroed in on those poor stranded travelers at Metro Airport, those "other" people -- not us!

THE BOTTOM LINE: Work is important. If it weren't for work where would people rest up from vacations?

Rainbow Girls attend reception in Adrian

By MRS. JOSEPH SPRING
699-4021

On Saturday evening, Jan. 30, 14 members of Belleville Assembly No. 49, Order of Rainbow for Girls, attended a Grand Reception at Adrian Assembly No. 44. They were accompanied by their Mother Advisor, Connie Gubaci; State Officials, Rose Welt and Denise Welt; Past Grand Advisor, Roberta Welt; Roberta Pond, and several adult members.

The girls received a special Faith Candle for having the most members present. The adults also received a special candle for having the most present.

The January birthdays of Jennifer Potts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Potts of Wayne, and her grandmother, Mrs. Stewart Potts, were celebrated at the latter's Wabash Street home with a family gathering Jan. 29. Present for the occasion were the Tom Potts and Tim Potts families from Wayne; Penny Allen and her son, Steven, and Mrs. Potts' sister, Mrs. Helen Staron from Westland, and, of course, the honoree's husband Stewart Potts.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mericle were among those attending the 45th wedding celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Burkett of Monroe, Jan. 30 at the 4-H dining hall of the Monroe County Fairgrounds. Mr. Burkett is manager of the Fairgrounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Huntsinger of Taylor were weekend guests at the Ted Luper home on Karr Road.

Mrs. Clayton Saunders has received word that her son, Lynn Saunders of Clinton Township, has been a medical patient at St. Joseph Hospital West in Mt. Clemens for the past week.

Funeral services were held for a former Belleville resident, Mrs. George (Juliet) Tedder of Ypsilanti, at the Moore Memorial Chapel Feb. 3. Mrs. Tedder passed away suddenly Jan. 31 at 85 years of age. Burial took place in Udell Cemetery.

Clubsters enjoy social evening

Ten members of the Home Arts Club of Belleville braved the ice and snow Jan. 11 to attend the first meeting of the new year at the Van Buren Township Hall.

A short business meeting, conducted by president Eula Haft, was followed by an evening of card games. The group had brought "white elephant" objects which were used as prizes for the games.

Charlotte Price and Marcia Hyde were hostesses for the month and served raspberry yogurt, chocolate mint and lemon creme pies and beverages from a table centered with an arrangement of candles.

The Feb. 8 meeting will be held at the Belle Plaza Hall where members will participate in an aerobic dance class. Anyone interested in joining the Home Arts Club is invited to attend the next session.

Wayne No.1 in Western Wayne swim

Zebras end Belleville's title monopoly

Ending nearly a 10-year monopoly held by rival Belleville, Coach Jim McPartlin's Zebras captured the 1982 running of the prestigious Western Wayne Swimming & Diving Championships held two-days on Friday and Saturday at Wayne High.

A near capacity crowd braved the inclement weather which included 20 inches of snow to witness Wayne win its first WW crown. The undefeated Zebras piled up 251-points and captured two of the 11 events to outdistance its closest rival Cherry Hill for the top honors.

"It was a good team effort on our part," McPartlin commented after the competition, "and we won it by placing a lot of kids in the preliminaries where we swam well."

However, McPartlin said that he was disappointed with his team's over-all performances in the finals where he felt that his team didn't swim to its potential.

Cherry Hill coach Wayne Beerbower, whose team finished 39 points behind the champs, said that "we were right there from start to finish, but didn't have the depth to cope with Wayne."

"But I must say this about our kids, they came away with three gold medals and dominated some of the events," Beerbower said. "I'm very proud of them."

Belleville, the perennial contender and Division A defending champ, didn't field a team for this year's competition. No one offered an explanation why the Tigers "were no shows".

Trailing the two frontrunners were Plymouth Salem (203), Livonia Stevenson (144), Wyandotte (135), Livonia Franklin (108), and Thurston (96).

Wayne claimed only one of the individual swim events. Zebra Keith Brothers nosed Plymouth Salem's Mark Roehrig in the race for the gold in the 100-yard butterfly. Brothers' winning time was posted at 57.5.

The Zebras also had the best 400-yard freestyle relay at the meet thanks to Kevin Egan, Eric Head, Randy Ferguson and Matt Hawthorne who turned in a 3:26.4 to seal the victory.

Cherry Hill's trio of champs included

Mark Borgeau, Martin Powers and Kevin Reside.

Borgeau led teammate Powers to the wire in the 200-yard freestyle as he covered the distance in 1:52.2, then Powers turned around and beat him in the 500-yard freestyle with a 5:04.3 performance. Reside outpaced Salem's Ashley Long to the finish of the 100-yard breaststroke.

Wyandotte has the lone double winners at the meet in Pat Gobb who was clocked in 22.6 for the 50-yard freestyle and won the 100-yard freestyle with a 50.1.

In the meantime, Livonia Franklin earned a spot on the winner's dais with senior John Cassidy's 2:05.8 in the 200-yard individual medley and Thurston had the only other individual, swimming event with John Edwards whose 58.9 was the best effort for the 100-yard backstroke.

On the diving boards, Plymouth Salem's Joe Redelic was unbeatable. The 17-year-old Salem senior amassed 434.75 points to top the 12 finalists and provide the Rocks with their lone gold medal.

What snow storm?

Spartans edge Crestwood

Apparently it was worth it for Cherry Hill to fight the storm Friday night and make the trip to Dearborn Heights.

"I felt we played one of our finest team games of the season," said Cherry Hill coach Dave Bogataj after his Spartans edged Crestwood 48-47 in a Tri-River Conference basketball thriller. "We didn't fold this time."

Cherry Hill raised its conference mark to 2-7 on the season and is sporting a 4-12 over-all record as it prepares to host Southgate on Friday.

Lonzo Clark's free throw with 11 seconds remaining gave Cherry Hill a three-point advantage and climaxed what was a close game all the way. Neither team had more than a four-point lead throughout the entire battle.

Tied at 9-all at the end of the first period, each team scored 13 points in the next eight minutes and would up deadlocked at 22-all after the initial half. Cherry Hill outscored their hosts 14-13 in the third stanza and that one point eventually stood up as the difference.

Both teams also used a zone defense, and, although the taller Crestwood quintet had the advantage on the boards most of the first half, the Spartans came back to win the battle of the rebounds 31-29.

With seven field goals and one of two free throws, John Green paced the Spartans with 15 points — the only Cherry Hill cager to reach double figures.

However, 6-3 Crestwood guard Doug Werth was the game's individual scoring leader. He had 18 points. Werth's teammate Brian Missiak chipped in 12.

Despite the weather, more than 700 fans flocked to the Crestwood gym to watch the game.

Earlier in the week, however, Cherry Hill collapsed in the last period and dropped a 65-51 contest to Garden City West. West's victory avenged an earlier

Swim strategy

Although he has won many Great Lakes 8 Conference championships, Wayne Memorial head swim coach Jim McPartlin had not been able to snatch the elusive Western Wayne Invitational crown, that is, until this year. McPartlin (above) watched his swimmers come through with the prestigious title after beating out their closest rival, Cherry Hill for the honor.

Fast-breaking Wayne stuns Lincoln Park

By ERIC GEARNES (Special Writer)

The Wayne Memorial High School Zebras got 36 points from their bench last Friday and handily defeated Lincoln Park 61-45.

Coach Dan Vasiloff saw his starters go cold after the long icy bus trip to the downriver school and turned the ballgame over to his bench.

Tony Bass and Vince Patterson responded with 10 and nine points respectively to lead reserves over the Railsplitters.

"We just couldn't seem to get untracked until some of the guys off the bench started the ball rolling," said Wayne's first year mentor.

In addition to Bass and Patterson, the coach also singled out junior forward Pete Foley for praise.

"Lincoln Park was besting us on the boards and Pete came off the bench and did a super job of rebounding for us, as well as picking up six points when we needed them," said Vasiloff.

The Zebras broke out on top in the first period taking an 11-6 advantage on the strength of some shooting by guard Shaun Boyer. Lincoln Park moved back into contention early in the second quarter as Steve Crane pumped in six of his game high 16 points to pull Lincoln Park even.

But, Patterson and Bass came in to halt the Railsplitter charge and lengthen the Zebra lead to 25-15 at halftime.

The Wayne starters again had trouble getting untracked in the third stanza and Lincoln Park pulled to within three points. Once again, Bass, Patterson, and Foley began their show and Wayne pulled out to a 33-25 lead at the end of three quarters.

The Zebras began the rout in the fourth quarter with all five starters on the bench. With Sam Lentine joining the other bench stars the Wayne reserves outscored the Railsplitters 28-20 to pull away and give Wayne their final margin of victory 61-45.

While Wayne is mathematically not out of the running for the Great Lakes Eight title chase, the Zebra coach has already set his sights on the District Playoffs at Plymouth Canton.

"This team has really matured over the year and I think they are ready to take on any team that we face. We aren't big, nor are we exceptionally quick, but everybody contributes to the team, against Lincoln Park everybody on the roster scored. Lately when someone has had a bad game there is always somebody ready to pick up the slack," said Vasiloff.

Wayne was to entertain John Glenn in their last home game of the season on Tuesday and then will begin their final four games of the year with a trip on Friday to Monroe. The remaining three contests after Monroe with Wyandotte, Truman, and Livonia Bentley are all away.

There's a Great Future in your past.

You have a past that's a prophesy of your future.

Great, highly-inspired Blacks have made their way through a turmoil of difficulties and injustices to become men of stature and respect.

Like these great Kings of Africa.

Granted, your future is in your hands, not theirs. But if ever you need inspiration for a successful future, look to your past. It is there that inspiration for success is firmly lodged.

Westland to host Golden Gloves meet

The Golden Gloves quarter-final area bouts will be held on Saturday at the Garden City Maplewood Community Center and the Melvin G. Bailey Recreation Center in Westland.

Boxing gets underway at 7 p.m., and tickets are available at $3 for bleachers and $6 for ringside.

The show will take place at 7 p.m. on Feb. 13, at Garden City West High School, 1851 Radcliff Road (south of Ford Road between Venoy and Wayne Roads) and is sponsored by Garden City Parks and Recreation Department and Westland Sparks Wheelchair Basketball Team.

Tickets will also be available at the door.

Joe Louis, Mickey Goodwin, and Thomas Hearn are only a few of the big name boxers from Detroit who are National Golden Gloves Champions. This year Detroit hopes to have another winner. Some of the top local boxing clubs participating in this years show are the World Famous Kronk Team, Livonia, Pal, and Westland and Garden City.

For more information, call 722-7620 or 421-0610.

Head over heels

Spinning and turning, Plymouth Salem's superb diver Joe Redelic pulls out of his dive in time to capture the coveted gold medal in the event at the Western Wayne. Redelic piled up 434.75 points for his overall performance and fell short of the record.

defeat to the Spartans.

Cherry Hill fell apart in the final eight minutes and was outscored 24-11 after staying close all of the way. West held the upper hand 20-19 and 33-31 after the first two periods and increased that margin to 43-40 for three quarters.

Scott Patterson, who had a team high 22 points, tossed in six of his team's 24 points in the last period to help the Tigers break loose. Patterson and Ron Pummill did most of the damage to Cherry Hill's defenses as they accounted for 37 of their team's 65 points.

Tom Pietruszka came up with 10 field goals and hit on three of his five attempts from the free throw line for 23 points to lead all scorers. Green counted 15 for the Spartans who made only 9 of 16 free throw offerings as compared to West's 19 of 24.

EMU to hold baseball seminar

Forget the 20 inches of fluffy white stuff on the ground. It's time to think spring and baseball.

The Eastern Michigan University annual baseball clinic will be conducted for coaches and students from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., Sat., Feb. 13 at Ypsilanti High School gymnasium.

There is an $8 charge for coaches and $4 per student registration fee and those wanting more information should contact Roger Coryall, assistant coach at 487-0315.

RICK WILSON

Glenn QB to sign with CMU

Rick Wilson, the area's No. 1 high school quarterback, signed a letter of intent this week to continue his education and play football at Central Michigan University this fall.

The 6-2, 185-pound versatile Glenn senior helped the Rockets capture the Northwest Suburban Conference grid title and post an 8-1 over-all record for the 1981 campaign.

Wilson tossed for 10 touchdowns and ran for seven more to earn recognition as an All-State, All-Area quarterback and the Northwest Suburban Conference coaches' choice as the "Outstanding Back of the League."

"Rick is a very hard worker and I really am happy for him," said Glenn coach Chuck Gordon, who added that he has confidence that the young griddier will do well at Central. "He's the kind of kid everybody enjoys coaching because he always gives you 100 percent."

WYAA accepts baseball registration

The Westland Youth Athletic Association is accepting registration for boys and girls' baseball and softball summer leagues.

Registration will be accepted for boys ages 8 through 18 and girls 9 through 18 at the Bailey Recreation Center, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. each Saturday during the month of February and on March 6.

For further information, please contact the WYAA at 261-5342.

Soccer clinic slated

If you're interested in coaching soccer, you'll be interested to know that the Michigan Soccer Association will conduct clinics at Van Buren Township's South Junior High the last week of February and the first week of March.

Clinics are scheduled for Feb. 23 and 26 and on March 1, 5, 8 and 12 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Basic skills, team organization, and coaching methods top the agenda of the course which will be conducted by Wayne Pirmann. Pirmann's credentials include coaching both professional and amateur players.

Cost of the clinic is $20 and information may be obtained by telephoning 699-1026.

'Worst week'

Glenn buried but not by storm

Glenn cage coach Dan Henry should have let nature take its course. The winter storm that ripped through the region was reason enough to call off his Rockets' scheduled games with Thurston and Farmington.

After taking on natural rival, Wayne nings' 11 points in a 64-48 loss at the hands of Farmington.

Memorial, Tuesday night, Glenn returns home Friday night to resume conference action with North Farmington.

Glenn captures Northwest Suburban wrestling crown

Westland John Glenn continued its domination of the Northwest Suburban Conference wrestling world last week as Coach Bob Lusk's grapplers captured their 15th conference championship.

Amassing 229½ points, Glenn had little difficulty retaining the title from a field that included North Farmington (164½), Thurston (94), Redford Union (75½), Livonia Franklin (64) and Garden City East (58½).

"I was pleased with the over-all performances of our wrestlers," said Coach Lusk who pointed out that all 13 of his wrestlers came away with medals.

"But, we can't sit on our laurels—the districts are on Saturday and we will have to be ready."

Glenn came away with six gold medals from the conference tournament as Phil Brown (heavyweight), Tom Gibson (164½), Mike Parsons (112), Darrell Reynolds (132), Robb Paciocco (138) and Don Forchione (155) each claimed weight titles.

Hail the victors

Wayne captures its inaugural Western Wayne crown

Spartan medalists

ers and Mark Bordeau who accounted for three gold medals. Reside was the top breaststroker at the meet, while Powers touched in first for the 500-yard freestyle and Bordeau was unbeatable in the 200-yard freestyle.

The waiting game

With their stop watches in hand, the time of decision is near in this the 400-yard freestyle event — the final event of the 1982 Western Wayne Invitational. Wayne had sealed their first WW championship in the 100-yard breaststroke, and Coach Jim McPartlin's swimmers climaxed the hectic competitions by coming through with their second win of the invitation. Using Kevin Egan, Eric Head, Randy Ferguson and Matt Hawthorne, McPartlin had the right combination which wound up with the winning time of 3:26.4.

Ready for the big one

Seven teams showed up to swim for titles and honors at the 1982 Western Wayne Invitational's "A" Division. The impressive field included representatives from Wayne, Cherry Hill, Plymouth Salem, Stevenson, Franklin, Wyandotte, and Thurston. When all the splashing was over, Wayne dethroned Belleville as the No. 1 team in the area. Belleville didn't show for the competitions, the first time in two decades that the Tigers failed to field a team.

Key Wayne performers

Though they took only two events, Wayne Memorial had the depth to claim the invitational title with foreign exchange student Frederick Ashuvud (from left), Ron Umfleet, Keith Brothers and Doug Craig playing maior roles in the triumph. Wayne swimmers remain undefeated in dual competition and are favored to capture the Great Lakes 8 Conference championship as well this year.

Battle's over

Cherry Hill's Steve Elswic has an enigmatic look on his face after coming through for the Spartans who placed second in a field of seven area teams. Coach Wayne Beer-bower's tankers have a perfect record in the Tri-River, a league they have dominated over the past seven years.

They won medals

Livonia Stevenson's Pat Schoff (at left) picked up a silver in the 200-yard individual medley, while teammate Rob Pavlic was the fifth best swimmer in the 100-yard butterfly.

In the finals

He may be surprised at the photographer or his fifth place finish in the diving competition, but Wayne Memorial's Dave Logan was something to boast about after the WW Invitational. No other Wayne team had ever won the team championship.

25TH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

JOSEPH P. SELWA and
MARY L. SELWA Plaintiffs,

vs.
JOHN STEPHENS and HELEN STEPHENS.
Defendants.

Case No. C-82-27

PUBLICATION NOTICE

On the 11th day of January, 1982, an action was filed by JOSEPH P. SELWA and MARY L. SELWA, Plaintiffs, against JOHN STEPHENS and HELEN STEPHENS, Defendants, in this court to forfeit a land contract.

On the same date, Judge John C. Seiler signed an Order to the effect that the Defendants, JOHN STEPHENS and HELEN STEPHENS, shall answer or take such other action as may be permitted by law on or before the 25th day of February, 1982. Failure to comply with this order will result in a judgment by default against such Defendants for relief demanded in the complaint filed in this court.
